PREFACE

The curriculum, with varying definitions, is said to be a plan of the teaching-learning process that students of an academic programme are required to undergo to achieve some specific objectives. It includes scheme of studies, objectives & learning outcomes, course contents, teaching methodologies and assessment/evaluation. Since knowledge in all disciplines and fields is expanding at a fast pace and new disciplines are also emerging; it is imperative that curricula be developed and revised accordingly.

University Grants Commission (UGC) was designated as the competent authority to develop, review and revise curricula beyond Class-XII vide Section 3, Sub-Section 2 (ii), Act of Parliament No. X of 1976 titled “Supervision of Curricula and Textbooks and Maintenance of Standard of Education”. With the repeal of UGC Act, the same function was assigned to the Higher Education Commission (HEC) under its Ordinance of 2002, Section 10, Sub-Section 1 (v).

In compliance with the above provisions, the Curriculum Division of HEC undertakes the revision of curricula regularly through respective National Curriculum Revision Committees (NCRCs) which consist of eminent professors and researchers of relevant fields from public and private sector universities, R&D organizations, councils, industry and civil society by seeking nominations from their organizations.

In order to impart quality education which is at par with indigenous needs and international standards, HEC NCRCs have developed unified framework/templates as guidelines for the development and revision of curricula in the disciplines of Basic Sciences, Applied Sciences, Social Sciences, Agriculture and Engineering.

It is hoped that this curriculum document, prepared by the respective NCRCs, would serve the purpose of meeting our national, social and economic needs, and it would also provide the level of competency specified in Pakistan Qualification Framework to make it compatible with international educational standards. The curriculum is also placed on the website of HEC

Acknowledgment
In the preparation of this new curriculum of English, apart from the members of NCRC, a number of friends and colleagues have contributed in developing certain very important courses, at our request. We are especially grateful to Dr. Sibghatullah Khan, Ms. Khadeeja Mushtaq, Ms. Uzma Aziz, and Ms. Asma Haseeb Qazi from National University of Modern Languages (NUML) Islamabad; Dr. Aroosa Kanwal and Ms. Asma Mansoor from International Islamic University Islamabad. The courses they developed are Pakistani Writings in English, Diasporic Literatures, Postcolonial Studies, South Asian Literature, Women’s Writings, War Literature, Shakespearean Studies, and Critical Theories.
Rationale of Curriculum Review and Revisions

Societies, states, individuals remain in a state of constant change and flux. The purpose of education, in Bertrand Russell’s words, is to replace an empty mind with an open one. However, if the means, materials and sources of education remain frozen in time and place, education cannot bring about the desirable change in the individuals and society at large. Keeping in view this spirit, the HEC constituted committees to review and revise Pakistan’s national curricula. The committee formed for the revision of English studies prepared the following syllabi for BS and MS levels.

As the focus in humanities is shifting and growing towards more interdisciplinary/transdisciplinary concerns, the English Studies program is developed for a more inclusive vision about society and culture by realigning language and literary studies with cultural studies in general.

Parameters of Review and Revision
In the beginning of meeting in Lahore, the chair of the committee laid down some parameters that may serve as the guiding principles governing all proposed amendments, revisions, deletions and additions:

1. To make the syllabi more global as well as regional and local in their ethos as, at present, the courses and the selection of authors and their works are more Euro-American centric.

2. To observe the principle of progression and sequencing in the proposed syllabi from BS/MA level to MPhil and PhD level so that the students may get maximum learning exposure about new writers and their works.

3. To incorporate pressing/critical issues for English studies with special focus on inculcating environmental consciousness, introductory knowledge of Muslim narratives, basics of translation studies, literature and film, women’s writings etc. In language studies, Metro-linguistics, eco-linguistics, corpus, computational, forensic linguistics and speech therapy are proposed for the syllabi. The inclusion of War Literature, Life Narrative Studies, World Literature in Translation, World Englishes, Corpus and translation, corpus and research, literature and visual narratives, Literature and Environmental Studies, Literature and Globalization, Intercultural Pragmatics, Language and Media, etc. at various levels of study are likely to make our national curriculum of English more contemporaneous, and relevant to the issues of our times. In addition, the inclusion of Rumi, Tagore, Tolstoy, etc. is emphasized. The inclusion of representative global, regional, ethnic and minority cultures and literatures is the hallmark of the new scheme of studies.
4. To strike a desirable balance between idealism and pragmatism while devising the new courses, keeping in view condition of human and intellectual resources at colleges and universities located in the far-flung areas of Pakistan.

5. To revamp the whole scheme keeping in mind the fact that English is no more the language of the British Isles only. Rather, its numerous world varieties referred to as “world Englishes” are to be kept in view while making proposals.

6. To bring the outline of all courses at par with those of international institutions especially of the advanced countries as due to lapses and lacks in our local scheme of studies, Pakistani students and scholars face problems in getting admissions and jobs abroad. The coding system of the new scheme is also devised on those lines that clearly reflect its various levels.

7. Most importantly, the scheme for BS English studies is prepared as a general degree programme in humanities and liberal arts. Therefore, the nuances of literature and linguistics are held off for MS/M.Phil. and PhD. levels. Here focus is more on providing opportunity to the students to read maximum cultural texts, that is, “literatures in Englishes” from around the world.

Nomenclature
After detailed deliberations, the nomenclatures of various degrees in English were decided:
- BS English (Language and Literature)
- MS/M.Phil. (Literature)
- MS/ M.Phil. (Linguistics)
- MS/ M.Phil. ELT
- Ph.D. (Literature)
- Ph.D. (Linguistics)

Majority of the members agreed that the spirit of BS in English is to offer a degree that addresses the issues of general, open-minded education without creating any specialist streams at this level. The purpose is to give a comprehensive exposure to the students without going into unnecessary distinctions about literature and linguistics, which is of course desirable at the advanced level of research degrees only, as is evident from the nomenclature of degree programs also.

After initial discussion and laying down of certain SoPs, the committee was divided into two sub-committees: Sub-committee for the literature courses was led by Dr. Saeed ur Rehman from FCCU, Lahore and Dr. Furrukh Khan from LUMS, Lahore. Sub-committee for the language and linguistic courses was led by Dr. Ghalam Mustafa Mashori from Shah Abdul Latif University, Jamshoro, and Dr. Azhar Pervaiz, Assistant Professor, Incharge Department of English, University of Sargodha.
Both sub-committees worked separately for three days in Lahore and for two days in Peshawar and, on the third day in Peshawar they discussed the whole scheme as one national committee. The document prepared and presented here is the outcome a long and hard collective team work.

Prof. Dr. Muhammad Safeer Awan
Convenor NCRC

Assessment criteria
The committee unanimously decided to replace thesis writing at undergraduate level with the following more rigorous writing program and assessment criterion.
Instead of asking the students to produce a “thesis” in the final semester, they will be asked to submit one end-term paper for each subject in every semester. In this way, they will have to write at least 46 such short response papers/end term papers during the course of four years of study. They will also have to give oral presentation for each paper before its submission. Each subject will be examined and assessed as under:

Total marks for each papers: 100
End-term test: 50
Midterm: 15
End-term paper/ major writing assignment: 10

Presentation based on end-term paper: 05
Quizzes: 05

Class assignments (summarizing/paraphrasing a piece of critical/creative writing): 05 each. Total:15

Total: 50+15+10+05++05+15=100

Teaching Research Methodology
The subject of Research Methodology will be taught in such a way that the students get maximum practice in doing it and not merely study its theory. Its assessment may be as under:
Theory: 40 marks (for end term paper)
Practice (in class and library): 60 marks, divided as Learning and using cataloguing system in the library:07
Learning and using various citation styles:08
Devising at least ten thesis statements/research problems:10
Devising research questions:10
Mock synopsis/research proposal:10
Mock research thesis/dissertation:15

Please note:

1. The foundation courses in the Scheme of Studies are mandatory for all Literature & Linguistics students.
2. The choice of the author and/or text in some literature courses is at the discretion of the department concerned (see course contents).
3. Universities/affiliated colleges may offer Electives other than those suggested in the Scheme of Studies as per available expertise and resources.
4. General Courses (GC) are offered by the departments concerned.
5. Depending upon the results of need-based analyses the universities/affiliated colleges concerned are advised to design non-credit courses of up to two (02) semesters to improve the language skills of the students. It will be mandatory for students to pass these courses.

SEMESTER-WISE SCHEME OF STUDIES

BS English (Language & Literature)

First Semester

Course Title: Study Skills
Course Code: GC101

Course Description
The main purpose of this course is to guide students in their first year of learning and impart basic study skills. It is designed with the view to enable them to take immediate control of their learning. The course will enable students to devise and follow “study systems” and equip them with the ability to think critically and adopt effective learning strategies. With the help of various study techniques and styles and other available resources, the students will be able to improve their academic performance.

Course Objectives
● To help students learn basic self-management and study skills
● To enable them to use combination of skills to minimize risks of failure
● To make them become confident and successful in the new learning environment

Course Contents
1. Seeking Success in University
   ● Knowing your campus and its resources
   ● Form An Academic Support Group
   ● Know Where to Find Help
   ● Stay Informed
   ● Get Involved
2. Motivating Yourself to Learn
   ● Assess Academic Strengths and Weaknesses
   ● Discover and use your learning style
   ● Develop Critical Thinking & Study Skills
   ● Adapt learning style to teaching method
3. Using Critical Thinking Strategies
   ● Examine Your Assumption
   ● Make Predictions
   ● Read With A Purpose
   ● Sharpen Your Interpretations
   ● Find Implications in What You Learn
   ● Read and Understand Graphics
4. Setting Goals and Solving Problems
   ● Set goals for success in college
   ● How to develop a positive attitude

5. Sharpening Your Classroom Skills
   ● Prepare for Class
   ● Become an Active Listener
   ● Develop A Personal Note-Taking System
   ● Guidelines for Note Taking
   ● The Informal Outline/Keywords System
   ● The Cornell Method
   ● Matching Note-Taking Style and Learning Style
   ● Learn To Make Effective Presentations

6. Making the Most of Your Time
   ● How to GRAB Some Time
   ● Scheduling Your Time
   ● Time Management and Learning Style
   ● Procrastination

7. Creating Your Study System
   ● SQ3R: The Basic System
   ● Devising Your Study System

8. Organizing Information for Study
   ● Memorization
   ● Concept or Information Maps
   ● Comparison Charts
   ● Timelines
   ● Process Diagrams
   ● Informal Outlines
   ● Branching Diagrams

9. Controlling Your Concentration
   ● Concentrations
   ● Eliminate Distractions
   ● Use A Study System
   ● Strategies to Improve Concentration

10. Preparing for Tests
    ● How To Prepare for Tests: Three Steps
    ● Develop a Test-taking Routine
    ● Master Objective Tests
    ● Know How to Answer Essay Questions

11. Becoming an Active Reader
    ● Reading Actively
    ● Find the Main Idea, Details, and Implications
    ● Using a Textbook Marking System

12. How to use a dictionary

13. Building Career Skills
    ● Working in the New Economy
Course Title: Introduction to Geography
Course Code: GC102

Course Description
Analyses the physical structure of the earth’s surface, including landforms, weather, climate, and biogeography. Emphasizes understanding of what makes each point on Earth unique and how humans interact with physical systems in multiple ways.

Course Objectives
Students should be able to:
- Explain the causes of seasons

Course: Introduction to Philosophy Level: BS 2nd

Course Description
The course introduces undergraduate students to some of the main concerns in philosophy concentrating on the works of major thinkers such as Plato, Aristotle, Descartes, Hume, Kant, Hegel, Marx, Kierkegaard, Husserl, Sartre, Foucault, and Derrida, to name a few. The class discussions will center on broad philosophical concerns: the nature of philosophy, the nature and limits of human knowledge, the scope and limits of human freedom, the differences between right and wrong conduct, the nature of good life, and the meaning and the value of human existence. The students will thus be given introductory overview of different areas of philosophy beginning with Plato. The topics for discussion will include: Morality, Free Will, Metaphysics and Knowledge. The basic principles and methods of logical reasoning will be introduced and students will be given opportunity to participate actively in class discussions.
Course Objectives

- Understanding basic concepts of philosophy in the fields of metaphysics, axiology, and epistemology.
- Understanding of philosophical terms.

Course Contents

1. A review of the history of philosophy
2. A discussion on the major problems and methods of philosophy
3. Studying the work of at least two philosopher from each of the following groups:
   1. Greco-Roman Philosophers
      Plato, Aristotle, Democritus, Pythagoras, Heraclitus, Protagoras, Epicurus, Seneca, and Epictetus

Course Title: Global Poetry
Course Code: ELL201

Course Description
This course covers the body of contemporary poetry, its techniques, thematic concerns, and theoretical viewpoints. By focusing on salient aspects of contemporary poetics this course aims to accomplish among students a habit of alternative interpretations of contemporary intercontinental cultural and political ethos under transition. Because literary modernism brushes shoulders with colonial, postcolonial, transnational, and cosmopolitan discourses therefore this course aims to identify an emergent, contemporaneous and eclectic poetic aesthetics. Ezra Pound’s call to Make it New remains a trusted creed of experimentation which lately has found its global adherents from Caribbean, Africa, South Asia, Ireland, and in other regions.

Course Objective
The main objectives of this course is to:
● Employ diverse methods of literary criticism such as historical, biographical, and gender criticism, and to do close reading of some of the foundational modern poets but at the same time to identify a poetic constellation comprising extensively wide-ranging voices of poetry.
● Glimpse the production of poetic discourse in places and regions where poetry in major Europe languages is no more a mere imitative exercise and the local and indigenous poets have added their voice of alterity.

Course Title: Short Fictional Narratives

Course Description
This course is a fertile field for students to broaden their vision with respect to English literature in general and short fiction in particular, written in different cultures and languages. It focuses on students’ critical engagement with different texts that represent a variety of cultures. The short stories in this course have been selected from a wide range of cultures with a view to highlighting the similarities and differences in the writings of different short story writers and how different writers reflect the social and cultural events through their writing with a variety of themes in different styles. The authors included in this course belong to different parts of the world so the works included are quite diverse not only in their form and language but also in themes. The issues and themes reflected or implied in these stories are illusory love, conformity, poverty, the power of words, transformation of identities, feudal structure of rural Punjab, racism in the backdrop of Civil War, political imprisonment, appearance vs reality, feminism, female violence, insanity, women’s emotional complexity, and slavery, to mention a few.

In this course, students will concentrate on seminal short fictions in English written by writers from the different regions of the world who have contributed significantly to literature in English through their narrative form and structure, thematic content, and articulation of human experience.
Narrative studies prepares students for the development and evaluation of original content for short fictions and other narrative platforms. To recognise a good story, to critique, to help shape, realise and transform requires a background in the history of narrative, cross-cultural and contemporary models.

The selection of the primary texts will take into consideration that they are united by their engagement with the struggle for the expression of human identity. Consequently, the selection of the short fictions will keep two things in the foreground: representation of diverse regions and narrative structure.

Course Objectives
The objectives of this course are
1. To provide an exposure to some classics in short fiction both in theme and form
2. To familiarize students with short fiction in English literature by the most recognized and awarded authors
3. To nurture the ability to think critically and promote intellectual growth of the students
4. To develop sensitivity towards cultural diversity through a critical study of the selected works and involve them on a personal and emotional level by relating the stories with their own experiences
5. To make them experience a genuine language context through these stories from different parts of the world

Course Contents
1. The Nightingale and the Rose Oscar Wilde
2. The Three Strangers Thomas Hardy
3. The Cask of Amontillado Edgar Allan Poe

Course: Classical & Renaissance Drama
Level: BS 4th
Course Code: ELL206

Course Description
The purpose of this course is to explore the nature, function, and themes of Classical Greek, Roman and Elizabethan drama in their theatrical, historical and social contexts. Through a detailed study of the texts by the selected dramatists such as Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Aristophanes, Seneca, Plautus, Shakespeare, Marlowe, and Webster the course traces the development of the key features of tragedy and comedy. Ancient opinions on drama, in particular, the views of Plato and Aristotle and their influence on classical drama will also be investigated. A comprehensive and critical background to mythology, drama and
The first section of the course will focus on representative classical plays which have influenced the development of drama as a genre. It will introduce students to the history of Classical Greek and Roman drama and motivate them to explore how selected texts can be interpreted in a modern context. A comprehensive and critical background to Greek drama and society is given in the beginning of the course to prepare students to undertake a close reading and analysis of the selected texts. Special emphasis will be given in the seminars to examine the role and significance of mythology in Greek drama, the importance of festivals in Greek society, the structure of Greek tragedy, and the difference between tragedy and comedy.

The second section focuses on the selective plays of William Shakespeare, Christopher Marlowe, and John Webster. Through a critical scrutiny of the recommended plays, students will be made to appreciate the variety and imaginative exuberance of drama written in the age that popularized cultural profundity, humanist tendencies, philosophical excavations and artistic excellence. Qualities such as the poetic richness, absorbing plots, and vivid portrayal of characters will be highlighted to catch the true spirit of Renaissance. Through a selection of plays, this section highlights the characteristic features of various dramatic forms like tragedy, comedy, and history, and their variations.

Course Objectives
Students will be taught to demonstrate:

- Knowledge of the myths, history, conventions, and major personages of classical theatre through readings of the plays and secondary sources.
- An insight into the culture, society and political events of the classical periods under study.
- An understanding of the main objectives, themes and ideas underlying Classical Drama.
- Sound knowledge of the works of a range of classical dramatists and the ability to relate the primary texts to their socio-cultural and historical contexts.
- The ability to carry out close reading and literary commentaries on the primary texts.
- Critically assess the inherent nature of the human condition - its paradoxes, complexities, and conflicts.

Course Contents
1. Aeschylus – Prometheus Bound
2. Sophocles – Oedipus Rex
3. Euripides – The Bacchae
4. Aristophanes – The Birds
5. Seneca – Hercules Furens (The Mad Hercules)
6. Plautus – The Pot of Gold

Course Title: Classical Poetry
Level: BS 4th
Course Code: ELL207

Course Description
This course focuses on the study of poetry from Geoffrey Chaucer to Alexander Pope. The term 'classical' understandably refers to the lasting appeal and artistic pleasure of the poetical works selected for this course. Though belonging to different poetical genres, the poetry of Chaucer, Shakespeare, Donne, Milton, and Pope have stood the tests of time and no further study in this genre of literature is possible without studying these bench marks of English poetry. The teachers of classical poetry need to inculcate a spirit of studying the aesthetic concerns of the times of these poetical masterpieces along with giving a holistic understanding of different genres of poetry, namely epic, ballad, sonnet, lyric, and elegy etc. Offering a study of the congenial humor and gentle satire of Chaucer’s Prologue to Canterbury Tales (c. 1389), the puritanical strain of Milton’s epic Paradise Lost (1667), the fiery quality of Love and divine poetry of the metaphysical poet John Donne, some sonnets of William Shakespeare and famous mock epic of Alexander Pope, this course is designed to cover the classical aspects of English poetry. By teaching the fundamentals of poetry that this course entails, the teachers may introduce a diversity of poetic expressions that will help the students further their inquiry into this genre in the coming semesters.

Course Objectives
This course aims to:
1. Trace the generic specific historical development of classical poetry, but also to develop a keen awareness of poetic language and tone of the period.
2. Introduce various forms and styles of the genre of poetry for creating an in-depth understanding of this genre.

Course Contents

William Shakespeare (1564-1616)
- Shall I compare thee to a summer's day? (Sonnet 18)
- Let me not to the marriage of true minds (Sonnet 116)

John Donne (1572-1631)
Love Poems:
- Song
- The Sun Rising
- Aire and Angels
- The Good Morrow
- Valediction: Forbidding Mourning

Holy Sonnets:
- Thou hast made me, and shall thy work decay?
- Death be not proud, though some have called thee

John Milton (1608-1674)
Paradise Lost. Book I (1667)
Paradise Lost Book 9 (The main contention and critical summary)

Alexander Pope (1688-1744)

Course Title: Rise of the Novel (18th to 19th century)

Course Description
This course aims to introduce the students to the origin and development of relatively late-emerging genre of novel. It has been designed with a view to developing their understanding how novel is different from other genres of literature, poetry and drama. The students are given an in-depth understanding of the making and mechanics of a novel, the role of narrator, narrative styles and techniques, and the art of characterization. The teacher is also expected to explain how a full-length fictional prose narrative is different from flash fiction, short story and novella. Discussing the emergence of novel since eighteenth century, this course brings out the significance of this genre as discussed, for example, in great detail in Ian Watt's seminal book, Rise of the Novel (1955). While teaching novel, teachers are supposed to consult and have a sound understanding of some of the ground breaking books as Rise of the Novel (1955) by Ian Watt, Aspects of the Novel (1927) by E M Forster, and The English Novel (1953) by Walter Allen. With a deeper understanding of the elements of fiction, the teachers will be able to impart a holistic definition of this genre starting from the basic "long fictional prose narrative" to a relatively complex definition of novel as can be extracted from, say, Ian Watt’s book. An understanding of ingredient elements that constitute a novel will enable the students to develop an all-round understanding of this genre and equip them to grasp the complexities of modern fiction course in the coming semesters.

Course Objectives
This course will enable the students
1. To have a full understanding of 18th and 19th century novel which is rich in diversity as well as creativity.
2. To closely study the English society of these centuries and its impact upon human lives, and its complex psychological phenomena.
3. To develop an insight into various factors responsible for the appeal of the subject matter of these novels which was not only enjoyed by readers of the centuries in which they were written but by Victorian readers or even for modern readers of contemporary times.

Course Contents
- Henry Fielding Joseph Andrews (1742)

Course Title: Romantic & Victorian Poetry
Course Code: ELL301

Course Description
This course analyzes representative examples of British poetry of the nineteenth century, that is, from the French Revolution to the first stirrings of modernism in the early 1900s. It comprises the poetry of two eras which came one after each other, namely Romantic and Victorian age. The first half of this module extends from the mid-1770s to the 1830s, a period marked by what Wordsworth referred to as those 'great national events' which were 'almost daily taking place': the American and French revolutions, the Napoleonic wars, imperial expansion, industrialization, and the growth of the political reform movement. The production and consumption of books took on a heightened political significance in these decades and this selection includes selection from the 'big six' Romantics (Blake, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Keats, P.B. Shelley, Byron). The second half of this course includes the poetry of the poets who are called as 'cunning terminators of Romanticism' by some critics. This era, marked by the coronation of Queen Victoria in 1837, known as Victorian age, spans till her death in 1901. The Victorians saw the virtues attendant upon a strong will as central to themselves and to their culture, and Victorian poetry strove to find an aesthetic form to represent this sense of the human will. Through close study of the metre, rhyme and rhythm of a wide range of poems - including monologue, lyric and elegy - the technical questions of poetics are related, in the work of these poets, to issues of psychology, ethics and social change.

Course Objectives
The aim of this module is to introduce students to the literary culture of this rich and exciting period, which, in the first half, begins in the year of America's declaration of independence and ends with the British reform act of 1832 and from there onwards till the first decade of the twentieth century.

Course Title: Foundations of Literary Theory & Criticism
Course Code: ELL302

Course Description
This course introduces some of the most vital debates in the tradition of English literary criticism from Plato and Aristotle in the Greek times to T. S. Eliot in early twentieth century. Equipped with the ability of analyzing and appreciating this literary tradition through all these centuries, the students would be able to grasp arguments in classical and romantic schools of literary criticism, represented by critics like Samuel Johnson, Matthew Arnold, T. S. Eliot, and F. R. Leavis on the one hand, and Philip Sidney, Wordsworth, and Coleridge on the other. That would help students be conversant with 'practical criticism' / 'close reading' and ideas-led' criticism respectively. By concentrating on this rich canonical tradition, students will be able to learn how each generation of critics has responded to critical theorizing and creative works of not only their own times but also the ages preceding them. What is likely to excite and engage the students is debates like Plato’s theory of imitation and his standpoint on poets, challenged not only by his contemporary and disciple, Aristotle, but also by Philip Sidney and others. Similarly, the import of Mathew Arnold’s view---one needs to study poetry of at least two different cultures, the more different the better---will be transformative for students of literature. Moreover, this course will ground the students in familiar critical concepts and thus prepare them to grasp the complexities of literary and cultural theory in later semesters.

Course Objectives
It is an intensive course in literary criticism focusing on the following aspects

- It would prepare the learners of literature and language to understand the historical background to literary criticism, exploring its developmental changes from Plato till T.S Eliot
- It would focus on the poetic and dramatic forms in order to highlight some significant trends and concepts in world literature in general and English literature in particular.
- It would also provide a brief introduction to the contemporary literary theories.

Course Title: Sociolinguistics

Course Code: ELL303

Course Description

This course provides a general introduction to Sociolinguistics. It examines language use in society, with a particular focus on the connections between language and different aspects of the society. In particular, this course is intended to provide the students with two general topics, i.e. micro-level and macro-level analysis of the relationship between language and society. The micro-level analysis includes various functions of language in society, solidarity and politeness, code-switching, kinesics, style, bilingual individuals, etc.; the macro-level analysis incorporates speech community, language planning, social and regional variations, bilingual community, etc. In addition, this source also gives the students information about methodological concerns in investigating sociolinguistic phenomena.

Course Objectives

The course aims at bringing about awareness of the dynamics of language and its social operations. The course will focus on the contemporary developments in sociolinguistics and the new dimensions of research in the area. The objectives of the course are to:
● Develop an understanding of the social, political and utilitarian dimensions of linguistics
● Explore modern trends and practices in sociolinguistics
● Link sociolinguistic theories with societal practices and ongoing global transformations

Course Contents
● Scope and ramifications of sociolinguistics
● Theories of sociolinguistics
● Language in culture and culture in language
● Societal multilingualism
● Linguistic inequality in social paradigms
● Social practices and ongoing global processes
● Language planning and societal issues
● Language conflicts and politics in south Asia
● Global language practices

Course: Popular Fiction
Level: BS 5th
Course Code: ELL304
Course Description
This course helps students understand different popular texts in the genre of fiction and the subgenres of fiction, across the world. This course will broaden students’ vision with respect to English literature in general and popular fiction in particular, written in different cultures with different language use. The popular fiction texts in this course have been selected from a wide range of cultures so that students can experience different cultures as well as writing styles in these texts. This course makes an interesting read for the students as they will come across different writers’ interests, stories, characters, conflicts/issues and themes etc. Responding to these diverse texts will be challenging to the students as well making them think critically and formulate their own meanings and ideas as they come across each text. The works selected for this course have been taken from different writers who belong to different parts of the world and communities. This diversity is reflected in these authors’ work though they reflect other communities as well, the ones they have not lived in. These works fulfill the needs of the modern day reader to read a good literary piece of work that they can relate to as these works are related to contemporary themes and elements. For example suspense, mystery, crime, love, trust deceit, destiny, redemption, guilt, friendship, death etc. These works can also be analyzed through different critical theories like Female Violence, Psychological Violence, Magical Realism, Feminism, and Cultural Hybridity etc. These works can make students think critically and motivate them to do further research and studies related to the selected works.

Course Objectives
The objectives of this course are
1. To expose the students to what is popularly read and appreciated worldwide in the genre of fiction.
2. To familiarize students with popular fiction in English literature written by the most recognized authors.
3. To construct the ability to think critically and promote intellectual growth of the students.
4. To nurture sensitivity towards cultural diversity through a critical study of the selected works.

Course Contents
A Reader Comprising the core text will be provided to the students.
1. And Then There Were None (1939) Agatha Christie (1890-1976)
6. Frankenstein (1818) Mary Shelley (1797-1851)
8. Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (1886) Robert Louis Stevenson (1850-1894)

SIXTH SEMESTER

Course: Modern Poetry
Course Code: ELL 305

Course Description:

This course aims at teaching critical analysis of modern poetry and, thus, developing an understanding of the aesthetic and intellectual contexts in which it was produced. The beginning and ending of modernist period are arbitrary, however, it is generally agreed that works written between 1890 and 1950 in North America and Western Europe follow the modernist tradition. The course will examine the roles of poets like T.S. Eliot and Ezra Pound, who are credited with radical shifts in style and content from their predecessors, to introduce modernist aesthetics in poetry. The students will do close reading of poems to discern differences in poetic style and idiom of authors.

Course Objectives:

- to identify and critically examine form, style and themes in modernist poetry.
- to study historical and cultural developments in which modernist poetry evolved and later gave way to confessional and other forms of poetry.

Course Contents/Core Texts

1. T. S. Eliot
   - The Hollow Men
   - The Waste Land
   - The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock

2. Ezra Pound
   - In a Station of the Metro
3. W.B. Yeats
   Among School Children
   Second Coming
   Easter 1916

4. W.H Auden
   Sep 1st, 1939.
   As I Walked Out One Morning
   The Unknown Citizen

5. Ted Hughes
   That Morning
   Hawk Roosting
   Thought Fox
   Hawk’s Monologue

7. Philip Larkin
   Mr. Bleaney
   Church Going

Course Outcomes:

Students are expected

- to demonstrate understanding of aesthetics of modernist poetry.
- to do a critical analysis of poems through close reading of the text.

Course: Modern Drama

Course Description
Modern day dramatic performances, live as well as those treated in different mediums of film and television, owe a lot to the genre of drama of antiquity. Building upon the prior knowledge of the key elements of the literary terms and techniques of drama learnt by students in the course of Classical Drama, this course will present some modern plays of the late nineteenth and twentieth century which have influenced the development of English drama. (Though the knowledge of literary terms acquired in Classical Drama will be of great help, yet this course can be studied as an entirely independent module). The dramas suggested for this course lend a considerable amount of variety to different forms of tragedy and comedy. The course is designed to impart, discuss, evaluate, and above all enjoy the spirit of modern drama. The socio-cultural aspects of society reflected in the drama of the selected age will also be highlighted along with its significance in our modern world.

Course Objectives
1. An overview of some of the most influential dramatists of modern age and their works with reference to their themes and dramatic techniques.
2. An emphasis on how certain dramatists are related to new ideas about the role of the theatre and its method.
3. A number of literary texts are read together with critical and theoretical discussions.

Course Contents
1. Ibsen, Henrik A Doll’s House, (1879)
2. Shaw, G. B. Arms and the Man (1894) / Man and Superman (1905)
4. Brecht, Bertolt Life of Galileo (1943)
5. Harold Pinter The Caretaker (1960)
6. Anton Chekov Cherry Orchard (1904)

Note: The teachers may choose any four as the core texts with taking Ibsen, Shaw and Beckett as compulsory writers and any other one writer from the list. Additionally they may assign class assignments and class projects from any other if they so choose.
Recommended Readings

Course: Modern Novel

Course Description
With a background knowledge of the types of fictions, the diversity in the art of characterization, i.e. round, flat, and stock characters etc. and all the associated details students have learnt in the course of classical novel, this course focuses the novels of 20th century. Through this course on Modern fiction, the students are able to grasp different techniques used and art/literary movements used in novel writing. For instance, questioning modes of imperialism in the Heart of Darkness (1902), stream-of-consciousness technique used in Woolf and Joyce’s works and, similarly, questions about cultures and humanity at large raised in the novels of Forster and Golding respectively. The basic questions raised against imperialism in works of Conrad will aid the students to study postcolonial novel in the later semesters. Students will appreciate the fact novel is the leading genre of modern literature that caters to the literary needs of modern readers. The diversity of themes explored in the novels of this course will excite the students to think critically and make them realize the importance of this genre of literature which, as is apparent from its nomenclature, has the capacity to incorporate any level of ingenuity of thought in its narrative.
Course Objectives
1. This course will survey the work of novelists who represent the artistic and cultural aspects of modern narratives.
2. The students are to examine different aspects of modern novels considering the style, point of view, tone, structure, and culture which contribute to the development of modern fiction.
3. Emphasis in this course is not on teaching the students a few modern novels but to enable them for reading and analyzing a modern novel.
4. The students will be acquainted and familiarized with the changing social and literary trends of 20th century as an aftermath and effects of WWI and later World War 2.

Course Contents

Course: Grammar & Syntax
Course Code: ELL 308
Course Description
Syntax is concerned with sentence structure - how words are combined to form phrases, how phrases are combined to form larger phrases, clauses and sentences, and how clauses are combined to form complex sentences. Ability to identify constituents and agreement constraints helps students to improve and correct their academic writing. The course is practical in focus and aims to teach students essential skills for the linguistic description and analysis of a language. The course also includes basic syntactic theories.

Course Objectives
The course aims to:
● acquaint students with basics of syntax
● enable students to identify various parts of speech through structural signals
● introduce the major syntactic structures of the English language to students
● enable students to recognize various grammatical constructions
● familiarize students with some elementary syntactic theories

Course Contents
1. Syntax
   ● Some concepts and misconceptions
   ● What is the study of syntax about?
   ● Use of linguistic examples
   ● Why not just use examples from English?
   ● How to read linguistic examples
   ● Why do languages have syntax?
2. Structure of Phrase
   ● NP: Noun Phrase
   ● VP: Verb Phrase
   ● AP: Adjective Phrase
   ● AdvP: Adverb Phrase
   ● PP: Preposition Phrase
   ● Grammar with phrases
3. Clause
   ● Clause and sentence
   ● Main and sub-ordinate clauses
   ● Clause constructions
   ● Recognizing clauses
4. Grammatical Functions
   ● Introduction
   ● Subject
   ● Direct and indirect object
   ● Complements
   ● Modifiers
• Form and Function together

5. Head, Complements and Modifiers
   • What is a head?
   • Head and its dependents
   • Projections from lexical heads to modifiers
   • Differences between modifiers and complements
   • PS Rules, X Rules and Features

6. Constituents and Tree diagrams
   • What is a constituent?
   • Evidence of structure in sentences
   • Some syntactic tests for constituent structure
   • Introduction to constituent structure trees
   • Relationships within the tree
   • Developing detailed tree diagrams and tests for constituent structure
   • An introduction to the bar notation

Course Title: Creative Non-fiction
Course Code: ELL310

Course Description
Creative non-fiction is currently undergoing rapid change and reformation. Instead of the old ‘cradle to grave’ narratives of well-known literary or political figures, our best writers are now experimenting with new forms and subjects. Nature writing, the personal essay, food journalism, art criticism and memoir are all part of this exciting, emerging mix.

The course focusses on a variety of sub-genres of creative/imaginative nonfiction such as autobiography and memoir, literary journalism, and the essay (including non-traditional forms like the lyric or graphic essay). This course will provide students with the tools to read, analyze, think critically, and write about creative nonfiction and to communicate their insights in oral and written forms. The course takes an integrated approach to teaching the skills of reading, critical thinking and writing specific to the interpretation of creative nonfiction, drawing on literary criticism and interpretive methods specific to life narrative to explore fundamental elements of the creative nonfiction sub-genres, including: plot and its relationship to thematic focus; the development of narrative personae and other aspects of characterization; style; setting; authentication, “evidence” and truth, and other issues of representation.

Course Objectives
By the end of the course, students should be able to understand/grasp:

- the various forms/genres of creative expression
- the theory or methods behind the creative expression(s)
- the social, cultural, and/or historical context of the creative expression(s)

Course Title: Literary Theory and Practice

Course Description
Literary texts remain integrally woven within the socio-political substratum; therefore, literary theory and its philosophical sub-text is used as the primary tool to decode the meanings both within texts and without them. Since literary theory contextualizes both meanings as well as the practices of decoding these meanings, it operates as a viable tool in enabling students to independently comprehend literary texts. Keeping this in mind, this course has been designed to introduce the students to key literary theories, their major concepts and basic jargon. This is so that they are initiated into the process of understanding the usage of these elements in their assignments and discourses. It also generates critical thinking that integrates the readers, texts and contexts in all their interactive paradigms.

Course Objectives
This course is pivoted on the following major objectives:
1. To introduce the students to the history and evolution of literary theory
2. To enable them to develop a deeper understanding how different theories may be blended to create different theoretical frameworks for analyzing different texts
3. To be able to offer critiques, not only of the literary texts, but also of the theories under discussion
4. To provide preliminary training to students so that they may be able to engage in independent theorizations, should they pursue higher degrees in the field

Course Contents

Course Title: Postcolonial Literature
Course Code: ELL406
Course Description
This course is based on a study of some seminal and significant postcolonial literary texts (selected poetry, drama and fiction) in order to introduce the student to the colonial project and see how the colonial experience helped shape literature as a result of military, political, social and cultural encounters between the colonizers and the colonized. The postcolonial literature(s) can be roughly divided into three overlapping phases. The first type comes from the period of contact between the colonial powers and the colonized, the second type is the response of the natives to the colonizers, and the third is contemporary literature which comes from the parts that were earlier colonized, and also from the diasporic authors. This study is also useful in assessing the developments which have taken place in this field over time and relate with the material conditions of the contemporary world and, consequently, with relevant theoretical concepts as well. An introduction to the key concepts and terms related to Postcolonial Studies is also part of this course.

Course Objectives
1. To develop an understanding of the key concepts and terms related to the postcolonial studies.
2. To study the selected literature employing the postcolonial concepts in order to analyze this literature.
3. To see how these readings relate with the contemporary realities, issues and debates of the world and to understand the importance of this field of study in the developments taking place in the world.

Course Contents
1. Poetry
   1. Derek Walcott. A Far Cry from Africa (1962)

   (Note: Four to five poems, out of each of these collections, may be selected by the concerned teacher.)

2. Drama

3. Fiction

(Note: Two short stories from this collection may be selected by the concerned teacher.)

Course Title: Introduction to Women's Writings

Course Description
Works written by women writers have come to hold a unique place in literatures around the world. This course is designed to familiarize students with an array of women's writings belonging to diverse cultures and located within multiple waves of feminism. The rationale of selecting such a wide variety of writers belonging to different ages is to highlight and underscore issues that women face in different geographical, cultural, and temporal locations. The course instructor would do well to either situate the works of selected writers in the three waves of feminism or otherwise see if certain texts do not correspond to any set feminist paradigm. The teacher will also need to discuss the reasons for such deviations. The course is therefore aimed at providing students with a complete background for understanding literature produced by female authors. Geared toward the construction of female selfhood vis-à-vis constrictions of patriarchal discourse, women's writings are associated with extensive social and political changes across time and space, the phenomena of colonization / decolonization, postcolonial, feminist, and postfeminist theory. Some of these changes are radical, even revolutionary for the re-definition of women's roles in both private and public domains. The students will also study how gender roles have changed, developed and evolved over time, how women’s views of themselves are reflected in their writings, and how race, ethnicity, gender, and socio-economic status contribute to / intercept women’s reaching their subject positions.

Course Objectives

The objectives of this course are to:
1. Enable the students to become familiar with the contribution of women writers to English literature and investigate the nature of this contribution.
2. Understand the themes of women writers in their writing.
3. Encourage students to appreciate the aesthetic, emotional, symbolic, and intellectual language used by women writers.
4. Create intellectual foundation for the students who may wish to further pursue advanced courses in this domain.
5. Encourage the students to see women’s writings as a distinct literary tradition that operate in interesting ways in the context of contemporary debates in feminism.
6. Develop critical thinking of students to be able to respond individually to the texts.
7. Enable the students to develop academic writing and research skills.

ELECTIVE SUBJECTS - BS ENGLISH (LITERATURE)

1. Course Title: African Literature (Elective)
   Course Code: ELL411

Course Description
The course introduces students to a range of African writers writing across Africa by highlighting the diverse historical, postcolonial, and political realities that helped shape current African literary discourse. The people of Africa and Europe met in an unequal situation, in which Africans were rendered materially inferior and subjugated through colonialism and slavery. This is the only form of modernity Africans have known so far. This course will explore issues of slavery, colonization and post-colony. In discussing literatures produced in various countries in Africa, it will be focusing on the distinctive characteristics of each text and how it is different and also very similar with other literary texts produced in Africa. This course will also focus on how various ethnicities, and the creation of borders by ‘former imperial powers’ have created problems for countries even after the independence, and how these conflicts are affecting and shaping the narratives by African writers, both male and female.

Course Objectives
This course will:
● augment students’ understanding of commonalities and differences faced by individuals and nations attempting to articulate their complex identities in an era of postcolonial modernity.
● provide students with enough theoretical frameworks to take part in a constructive discourse on issues related to race, identity and gender.
● create an insight into the impact of colonialism, race, class, ethnicity and culture on the works of African writers.
● Improve key understanding of students who after the completion of the course will be in a position to understand multiple cultural viewpoints, sensibilities, and values through careful analysis of recommended course content.

Course Contents
● Head, Bessie, A Question of Power
● Nadine Gordimer (selective short stories)
● Soyinka, Wole, Death and the King’s Horsemen (1975)

2. Course Title: Postcolonial Women’s Writing (elective)
Course Code: ELL412

Course Description
This course introduces students to postcolonial women authors and their politics of gender and identity. The main corpus of Postcolonial writing has mostly been focused on the work of male authors; however, in order to understand the aesthetics and politics in the field of Post-colonial, it is extremely important to take into consideration the work of female author. This course will explain that how gender and class as separate and important categories affect the creative process of women writers and consequently, how their work distinguishes from the work of postcolonial male authors. This course will further elaborate that the creative work of Postcolonial women authors negotiate between their indigenous traditions and modernity, and how this negotiation becomes an important and integral element of their feminist discourses.
Course Objectives
This course will accomplish the following goals:

- It will enable students to construct a literary framework for the analysis of Post-colonial women's literature and theories in order to understand varied female experiences.
- Students will be in a better position to engage critically with the work of Post-colonial women writers within their distinctive socio-cultural context.
- It will encourage them to observe the diversity and uniqueness of women experiences and hence contesting the concept of universal sisterhood.

4. Course Title: Islam and Western Literature
Course Code: ELL411

Course Description
What does it mean to be a Muslim in this world, in these deeply transformative times? Today, when the Islam-West binary is collapsing and "the West" as a construct no longer holds the same normative hegemony, stereotypes and prejudices, doubtless, play a certain role in every representation or vision of the Other—Islam. Regarding Islam, such biases are, however, of a particularly long and rich history. Only after a century since its emergence, Islam was seen as a danger to Christianity. John of Damascus had already given in 8th century a complete, though totally ignorant, view of the Muslim civilization. This course presents variety of approaches to the multiple and changing ways Islam has been presented and discussed in the Western literatures. The present course takes into consideration how Islam has been viewed and alluded to in the literary narratives of the West. A critical assessment of the tenets of Islam embedded in the European texts is part of the course.

Course Objectives
1. To acquaint students with the discussions of and allusions to Islam in the Western literatures.
2. To enable students to appreciate the Western literary treatment of the Islamic resources.
3. To engage students in a fruitful and mutually productive dialogue between Islam and the West.
4. To appreciate the efforts of the European writers and scholars who dealt with Islam with intellectual integrity and great literary prowess.
Course Contents

- Islam and the West: conciliation and confliction
- A legacy of stereotypes and strictures
- Coleridge and Islam
- Islamic influence of Ralph Waldo Emerson’s thought
- Romanticism and Orientalism: A relatively amicable companionship.
- Islam in an age of postcolonialism
- Islam and the West: The ideas of the renewed contemporary Muslim intellectuals: Tariq Ramadan, Seyyed Hossein Nasr, Hamid Dabashi
- George Sale’s Preface to the translation of the Quran
- Robert Southey’s Thalaba the Destroyer (to be discussed selectively)

Course Title: Second Language Acquisition
Course Code: ELL421

Course Description
This course focuses on second language acquisition (SLA) aiming overall to introduce students to the major concepts and theories of SLA. It is divided into two parts. The first part outlines some general concepts concerning the field of SLA and the second part provides an overview of some of the most influential SLA theories.

Course Objectives
The objectives of the course are to:
- Enable the students to explore and evaluate SLA theories from the point of view of second language learners
- Develop students’ understanding of the cognitive and social dimensions of SLA
- Enable the students to gain an understanding of basic concepts of SLA.

Course Contents

Basic Concepts of SLA
- Key issues in second language acquisition
- Language, acquisition and learning
- First language acquisition
- Comparing and contrasting first and second language acquisition
- Factors affecting second language acquisition
- Social factors and second language acquisition
- Cognitive factors and second language acquisition
- Individual differences and second language acquisition
- Classroom second language acquisition
- Formal instruction and second language acquisition
- Classroom interaction and second language acquisition
- Input, interaction and second language acquisition
- Error analysis and second language acquisition

Theories of SLA:
- The Monitor Model
- The Acquisition versus Learning Hypothesis.
• The Monitor Hypothesis.
• The Natural Order Hypothesis.
• The Input Hypothesis
• The Affective Filter Hypothesis

Interlanguage Theories
• Overgeneralization
• Transfer of Training
• Strategies of Second Language Learning
• Strategies of Second Language Communication
• Language Transfer
• Stabilization and Fossilization in Interlanguage
• Language Socialization in SLA
• Acculturation/Pidginization Theory
• Sociocultural Theory
• Processability Theory
• Cognitive approaches to second language acquisition
• Cognitive Processes in Second Language Learners
• Universal grammar
• Role of Universal Grammar in First and Second Language acquisition • Principle and Parameter Theory
• Projection Principle
• Language learning through association
• Connectionism

7. Course Title: Introduction to Syntax
   Course Code: ELL422

Course Objectives
The course aims at helping students understand the basic concepts of sentence analysis. Taking examples from English, it guides students in analyzing constituents in a sentence and then sentence as a whole. Further, it gives an idea of basic syntactic analysis of Pakistani languages.

The objectives of this course are to enable the student to:

- know internal sentence structure
- be familiar with basic concepts of syntactic analysis
- present sentence to the theory and practice of the structural grammar
- be able to do a detailed analysis of English sentences
- learn descriptive techniques, theoretical concepts, and styles of argumentation
- to apply theoretical concepts and rules to syntactic data from Pakistani languages

Learning Outcomes
After studying this course, the learners will be able to:

i. have command on the tools of syntactic analysis
ii. have understanding of syntactic theory
iii. learn analyzing syntactic data
iv. develop strong problem-solving skills in syntax.

Content List
- Introduction to Syntax
  - Word Classes (parts of speech)
  - Lexical Phrases and Functional Phrases
  - Phrases and its types, NP, AP, PP, VP and Advp
  - Basic Verb Phrase, Intransitive, Transitive, Ditransitive, Intensive, Complex Transitive
  - Clauses, Sentences Types of sentences, Compound, Complex Sentences
- Analyzing Sentence Structure
- Basic Elements in Sentence Analysis: Constituents, Categories, Functions
Functions: Subject, Predicate, Predicator, Direct/Indirect Object
Complements and Adjuncts in the Verb Phrase
Adjunct adverbials, Conjunct and Disjunct adverbials Relation, Dependency- Subject, Predicate, Modifier, Head, Complement)

Sentence Analysis through Phrase Marker/Tree Diagram
The basic NP configuration, Determiner and Pre Determiner, Possessive NPs as Determiner

Course Title: Introduction to Forensic Linguistics
Course Code: ELL423

Course Description
This course aims to present and identify the interface between linguistics and law. This course is an introductory course for the students of Linguistics. The application of Linguistic knowledge to help law officials is appreciated all over the world. The Text and process of law are very complex. This complexity is not only due to its procedures, but also due to its language. Keeping this in mind, this course investigates the use of Forensic Linguistics from Pedagogical point of view. It will help not only the students of language to find out new prospects of investigation other than language teaching, but will also benefit law students by making them understand the intricacies of the English language.

Course Objectives

At the end of the course, students are expected to understand:
● The link between Language and Law
● The historical background of Forensic Linguistics
● The role of linguists in law
● The use of Forensic linguistics, some benchmark studies
● The need of Forensic Linguistics in Pakistan

Course Contents
● Applied Linguistics and its diversity, Application of linguistics in the field of law
● Introduction to Forensic Linguistics
● Definition, Description of Forensic linguistics
● Forensic Linguistics as an important branch of Applied Linguistics
● Brief History of Forensic Linguistics
● The role of Linguistics in Law, in Text Analysis as well as in Process analysis.
● The application of skills in different branches of Linguistics in Law
● The application of the knowledge of Phonetics and Phonology in Forensic analysis.
● The application of the knowledge of Morphology and Syntax in Forensic analysis.
● The application of the knowledge of Semantics and Discourse Analysis
● Some benchmark studies around the world
● Benchmark studies of linguists like Labov, Roger Shuy, Olsson, Mcmenamin, Tierisma, Leonard, Chaski.
● The need of developing forensic linguistics in Pakistan

10. Course Title: Language Testing & Assessment
Course Code: ELL425

Course Description
Since language testing is essential to know whether students learn that they are expected to. This course therefore, aims at educating students about authentic, valid, and reliable assessment tools. In addition, this course focuses on providing students the basics of theoretical background and relevant practice via available assessment tools and resources. This course will serve as an introduction to basic concepts of language testing and assessment.

Course Objectives
The objectives of the course are:
- Familiarize students with the key concepts of language testing and assessment
- Comprehend, interpret, and develop critical approach to testing and assessment materials
- Evaluate particular testing materials with regard to the purpose and context of assessment.

Course Contents
1. Language Assessment in context;
2. Concepts, Principles and Limitations of Measurement;
3. Scope of language assessment in education and Research;
4. Interrelationship of language abilities and Language Assessment Instruments;
5. Characteristics of Assessment Methods affecting Performance on Language Assessment Instruments;
6. Reliability and validity of Assessment;
7. Current Issues in Language Assessment and Language Assessment Research.

13. Course Title: Corpus Linguistics

Course Description
This course will provide a general overview of Corpus Linguistics, focusing on contemporary approaches. It also provides a historical overview of the discipline. The main theoretical issues in the discipline will be discussed. The qualitative vs. quantitative; diachronic vs. synchronic; monolingual vs. multilingual perspectives will be introduced. Examples and techniques for analysis at different levels will be given. Students will learn how to use some of the most common techniques, tools and software packages in corpus linguistics.
Course Objectives
The main objectives of the course are

- To introduce corpus Linguistics as an emerging branch of linguistics
- To introduce to different perspectives in the corpus-based analysis of language.
- To teach how to use some of the most common techniques, tools and software packages in corpus linguistics.
- To get familiar with corpus tools in research

Course Contents

- Define and describe the main perspectives on the analysis of language from the point of view of corpus linguistics.
- Describe the difference between quantitative and qualitative corpus linguistics.
- Describe the difference between diachronic and synchronic corpus-based research.
- Identify the differences in conducting corpus research on monolingual vs. multilingual corpora.
- Identify the different levels of analysis in corpus linguistics (phonetic/phonological, morphological, lexical, syntactic/pragmatic, discourse).
- Critically evaluate different theoretical perspectives in corpus linguistics.
- Explain what it means for corpus linguistics to be a theory or a method.
- Describe the recent history of corpus linguistics.
- Compare Neo-Firthian corpus linguistics to corpus-based linguistics.
- Analyze applications of corpus linguistics (dictionary/grammar creation, education, writing, language acquisition, language teaching).
- Evaluate the limitations on the generalizations derived from data.
- Recognize and develop strategies and practices to deal with the issues surrounding corpus collection, storage, annotation and analysis.
- Manipulate the most commonly-used tools in corpus linguistics.
- Develop skills in corpus collection, searching, annotation and analysis.
- Apply basic statistical techniques to corpus analysis.

1. One midterm/sit-down test: 15 marks
2. Presentation and class participation: 10 marks
3. Fortnightly reflection/response papers (4-5 page only), which sets out the author’s position on the broad themes of the course: 15 marks
4. One major (5-6000-words) essay as term assignment: 15 marks
5. Terminal written exam: 45 marks
Course Title: Advanced Literary-Cultural Research Methodology (core)
Level: MPhil
Course Code: ELIT701

Course Description
This course introduces the basic and advanced concepts and practices in research. Since the students are from the Humanities disciplines, the course will concentrate on qualitative methods. It has been designed for scholars who have some basic knowledge of research practices. Qualitative research complements quantitative research and there may be some areas where it is more likely to reflect the complexity of observable data. For some social researchers, especially those working in the human sciences, qualitative research may be more suitable to describe human actions and their symbolic exchanges. As a major approach of conducting social inquiry, qualitative research has become a critically important contributor of knowledge about human social processes. The disciplines that have benefitted from qualitative research include literary studies, ethnography, ethnology, anthropology, psychology, social work, sociology, comparative religion studies, and critical theory.

Course Objectives
In this course, the students will be able to learn the following key elements of qualitative research:
- identifying the setting and data
- choosing the appropriate qualitative research methods or combining/mixing methods
- fieldwork analysis
- reporting the results

The students should be introduced to the following methods of observation and data analysis:
- the in-depth and unstructured interview
- life histories
- focus groups
- thematic categorization
- discourse analysis
- symbolic exchange/interaction analysis
- deconstruction/critique
- narrative analysis
Course Outline

- Introduction to Research
- Constructing valid research questions
- What’s a hypothesis/thesis statement/statement of the problem?
- Selection of text as representation and Interpretation
- Cognitive biases in the selection of text
- Politics of interpretation
- Examples and styles of Interpretation
- Concept of Research Paradigm and comparative study of major paradigms of research
- Place and process of literary studies in academic research
- Literary Research Methods:
  1. Archival Research Methods
  2. Auto/biography as a Research Method
  3. Oral History as a Research Method
  4. Visual Methodologies
  5. Discourse Analysis and Critical Discourse Analysis
  6. Ethnography as a Research Method
  7. Quantitative Methods for textual/literary studies
  8. Textual Analysis as a Research Method
  9. Creative Writing as a Research Method
  10. Semiotics as a research method

Course Title: Critical Theories (core)

Course Description
This course traces the development of literary theory as a reaction to the failure of Enlightenment movement. As a discipline, critical theory assumed great significance in the second half of 20th century. The emphasis would be on the developments after Charles Darwin, Karl Marx, and Freud had presented their theories. However, these developments and the subsequent ones will consistently be seen in relation to ideas that dominated the Western thought before and after the two World Wars that comprehensively frustrated the promise of the enlightened humanist view of the world. As literary theory continues to colour our worldview and interpretations of literature, this course focuses on conceptual anti-foundational developments and not merely the historicisation of critical thought from Aristotle to Eliot. The students will be introduced to the dialogic nature of various theoretical strands and methodologies used to interpret literature. During the course of the semester, they will be encouraged to apply those methods on their reading of literature.

Course Contents
1. Introduction.
   The common ground between literary criticism, philosophy and literary theory should be delineated. The course will include an introduction to the fundamental shift in Western thought in 19th century. The thinkers (e.g. Charles Darwin, Karl Marx, Sigmund Freud and Friedrich Nietzsche) who caused this shift will be introduced. During the discussion, the contribution and influence of three literary critics from England, I. A. Richards, William Empson and F. R. Leavis, who triggered new critical trends, will also be discussed.
2. New Criticism.
   This section focuses on the shift from Liberal Humanism to new modes of interpreting literature. William Empson's Epilogue to Seven Types of Ambiguity will be used to highlight this shift.

3. Neo-Marxism and Marxist Criticism.
   Karl Marx “Consciousness Derived from Material Conditions”, a selection from The German Ideology, will be discussed to understand the basics of Marxist theoretical framework. The students will be apprised of this framework’s bearings on literary studies through a discussion of Terry Eagleton’s “Categories for a Materialist Criticism”, a selection from Criticism and Ideology.

4. Structuralism
   This section includes discussion on Ferdinand De Saussure’s “Nature of the Linguistic Sign” (from The Course in General Linguistics). The following discussion will underline the implications of de Saussure’s findings on the relationship between word and things. In the latter half of the session, Claude Levi-Strauss’s “The Structural Study of Myth” will be discussed. The discussion will foreground Levi-Strauss’s application of structuralist methods in analysing mythology.

5. Post-structuralism/Deconstruction.
   Jacques Derrida’s deconstruction of Levi-Strauss’s study of myth laid down the foundations of a new, and perhaps the most radical, school of thought, that is, deconstruction, of the 20th century. The beginning of post-structuralist/deconstructionist thought and its challenge to binaries in Western critical tradition would be discussed in the light of Derrida’s essay “Structure, Sign and Play in the Discourse of the Human Sciences.” Michel Foucault’s “What is an Author?” will also be discussed.

6. Semiotics.
   Umberto Eco’s “The Myth of Superman” analyses the relation between human beings and stories of cyclical nature. Eco views Superman as a modern myth and theorises its bearings on modern thought.

7. Psychoanalytical Criticism.
   Psychoanalysis is akin to the study of literature. Like literature, it allots greater importance to covert meaning in our use of language. Sigmund Freud’s “Creative Writers and Daydreaming,” Jacques Lacan’s “The Mirror Stage as Formative of the I Function as Revealed in Psychoanalytic Experience” (From Écrits: A Selection), and Julia Kristeva’s “Psychoanalysis and Polis” will provide the bases of discussion on this relationship between literature and psychoanalysis.

8. Feminist Criticism.
   What is feminism? Do women writers need to (re)create language to write a literature of their own? And most importantly, how do they relate themselves to their male and female predecessors? These questions will be debated in the light of Sandra M Gilbert and Susan Gubar's "Infection in the Sentence" (The Madwoman in the Attic) and Elaine Showalter's "Toward a Feminist Poetics" (From The New Feminist Criticism).

9. Green Studies and Ecocriticism

Primary Texts

Recommended Readings
1. Barry, Peter. Beginning Theory. This is an easy-to-use introduction to literary theory which in a very accessible way introduces beginners to different theoretical schools and complex ideas of critical theory. This book is invaluable for its understandable explanations of theoretical concepts, which a beginner otherwise might find intimidating.
2. Bennett, Andrew, Nicholas Royle. Literature, Criticism and Theory. This book elaborates the relationship between the text and reader, reader and author, and reader’s role in interpreting the text.
3. Cuddon, J A. The Penguin Dictionary of Literary Terms and Literary Theory. An essential reference book that every student of literature must have in his/her personal collection. This book is meant not only to be consulted frequently but read as well.
4. Eagleton, Terry. Literary Theory: An Introduction. A slightly advanced introduction to Literary Theory, as Eagleton focuses on selected theoretical trends. However, Eagleton connects literature and theory in his known lucid style, which makes this book a wonderful read.
5. Malpas, Simon, Paul Wake. Routledge Companion to Literary Theory. A useful selection of essays about major theories. It is a very helpful introduction to Literary Theory, designed for those who have already been initiated into it. At the end, it provides an explanation of frequently used theoretical terms and ideas.
6. Payne, Michael, John Schad. Life. After. Theory. This book discusses whether theory has overstayed its welcome or has it left a permanent imprint on our consciousness and thus debates about it have become irritatingly repetitive.

7. Richter, David H. The Critical Tradition: Classic Texts and Contemporary Trends. A comprehensive work that covers critical tradition from the earliest developments in critical thought to recent developments in critical thought. It has selections of original works from Plato to Terry Eagleton. Canonical texts of great thinkers and critics are placed in different sections according to the school of thought they represent. At the beginning of each section, an insightful introduction is provided about that particular school of thought.

1. Tyson, Lois. Critical Theory Today: A User Friendly Guide. Another brilliant introduction for candidates who are starting a course in Literary Theory. Tyson provides a detailed introduction to contemporary literary trends and their development. She explains most frequently encountered theoretical approaches to study literature using examples every reader can relate to.

Course Title: Shakespearean Studies
Level: MPhil

Course Description
The focus of the course is to study Shakespeare in the light of revisionist criticism such as postcolonial theory and contemporary cultural theory at large. The course includes plays from Shakespeare's histories, tragedies and comedies. While these genres might at first glance seem to exist in radically different realms—histories dealing with political struggles and the public world, tragedy with a downfall of a hero, comedies with love and private lives --- the emphasis will be upon change that these genres share. For example, Trauma and transformation are Shakespeare's subjects in all of these plays: Richard III, Henry IV part 1, Henry V, Henry VI part 3, A Comedy of Errors, A Midsummer Night's Dream, The Merchant of Venice, and Twelfth Night. The course will explore development of Shakespeare's dramatic powers in history, tragedy, and comedy from the early plays to the middle of his career, and to the rich and varied achievements of his later plays. Dramatic forms, themes, characters, and styles will be studied in the contexts of Shakespeare's theatre and his society. The culture and language of a very distant time period and how it appears in the plays will be focused, as a prelude to an examination of how the plays' poetic forms help express pain and reconciliation. Shakespeare's greatness/universality will also be explored/questioned in his plays and sonnets.
Course Objectives
1. The course is expected to develop student’s ability to critically appreciate Shakespeare and explore different dimensions of his characters, dramatic forms and themes.
2. The course hopes to develop literary competence by a comparative analysis of different genres and plays.
3. The course will enable students to critique, evaluate and reflect on Shakespeare’s contribution to sonnet.

Course Outcomes
After completion of the course, students are expected to
1. Refine their analytical ability and in-depth understanding of Shakespeare as a dramatist and poet.
2. Write response papers on Shakespeare in the light of postcolonial critical theories.

Course Contents
1. A Midsummer Night’s Dream
2. Hamlet
3. Henry V
4. Julius Caesar
5. King Lear
6. Othello
7. Richard III

Course Title: Postmodern American Literature

Course Description
The course is designed to introduce students to postmodern American literary panorama. The aim is to understand postmodernism in terms of literary theory and practice. The contents highlight how postmodernist literature is marked with literary techniques such as fragmentation, paradox, unreliable narrators, often unrealistic and downright impossible plots, games, parody, paranoia, dark humor and authorial self-reference. This means considering postmodern literature in terms of form rather than context. This further leads to assessing how social and cultural change might prompt changes in literature and how literature positions its readers to respond to it. The course examines in particular the uneven effects of postmodernity and postmodernism as shaped by differences in race, ethnicity, class, sexuality, gender, and region. In this regard, the question of what constitutes "America" in postmodern world will be seen as a critical issue.

The course introduces a variety of postmodern American authors who tend to reject outright meanings in their novels, stories and poems, and, instead, highlight and celebrate the possibility of multiple meanings, or a complete lack of meaning, within a single literary work. The course does not deal with passive reading, rather it prepares readers to be skeptical about commonplace truths. It encourages students to question the truths of postmodern world, read critiques and write their responses. The course is challenging as it requires the reader to be an active co-creator of meaning. So that students need to work on their own views about postmodern literature so they may utilize their own ideas for carrying out research in future.

Course Objectives
The course aims to:
- Introduce the concept of postmodernism in American literature.
- Familiarize students with techniques of postmodernism such as fragmentation, paradox, unreliable narrators, unrealistic plots, plurality, paranoia, dark humor and introduce concepts of pastiche, intertextuality and magical realism etc.
- Enable students to analyze literary texts in the light of postmodern literary theory.
- Make students aware of the responses, criticism and theatrical debates on postmodernism in order to develop a better understanding of modern literature.

6. Kurt Vonnegut- Slaughterhouse-Five
7. Foster Wallace- The Broom of the System
8. John Fowles- The French Lieutenant Woman, A Maggot
9. John Barth- Letters, Chimera

Outcome(s) of the course
- The course is challenging but it will enable students to develop a critical approach.
- The course will provide theoretical and conceptual understanding of postmodern American literature so it will enable students to be more conversant with the ideas of relative truth and fragmented reality in these postmodern times.

- It is expected that students will be able to explore new ideas and write research papers in this subject area and hence grow in the field of research, which is indispensable to make a place in the academia.

SECOND SEMESTER

Course Title: World Literature in Translation
Course Code: ELIT705

Course Description
World Literature that is rendered in English, from the pre-Colonial era to the present, introduces scholar(s) to major literary topics and themes emerging from a variety of nations and cultures. Genres studied include the novel, short story, poetry, testimonial narrative, plays and historical nonfiction. Readings, films, and discussion help provide the social and historical context necessary for understanding and appreciating literature from Mexico, the Caribbean, Central and South America, Europe and Asia. Special emphasis is given to the relationship between literature and social change, focusing particularly on the literary theories that enable a better interpretation of art. As the scholars explore this literature, they will learn about history, politics, human rights, social activism, and gender roles all over the globe through the lens of fictional and non-fictional characters.

The course encourages introspection in the analysis of literary texts through class discussions, occasional lectures, and written assignments and oral presentations. Scholars are asked to imagine the context in which the author wrote and thought at that time.

Course Objectives
The course aims to help students achieve the following:
- Become familiar with important authors and common themes in contemporary translated literature.
- Recognize literary terms, concepts, critical strategies and stylistic characters in the texts studied.
- Articulate a basic understanding of history, politics, human rights, social activism, and gender roles, as seen through the lens of fictional and non-fictional characters
- Demonstrate critical and independent thinking in the interpretation of texts
- Demonstrate an understanding of ways the literature studied reflects its intellectual, social, historical, and multicultural contexts
Course Outcomes
● Scholars should be able to evaluate the power of literature to address personal values and goals and to challenge human endeavors, and also to write academic research papers based on literatures in Translation.

Course Contents
1. A selection of poems and an excerpt of a biographical and feministic letter: Response to Sor Filotea (Sister Juana Ines de la Cruz)

Course Title: Pakistani Writings in English (core)
Course Code: ELIT706

Course Description:
This course does not merely trace the evolution of Pakistani Literature in English, it also brings into the spotlight the more contemporary writings in English that are making their mark on the international scene. While it has brought together a number of literary works from different sources, what makes this course unique is that it has also incorporated recent critical works that have made their mark on the international scene. The texts included within this course offer a diversity of ideas for analysis in terms of generic, thematic and stylistic evolution. With novelists ranging from Bapsi Sidhwa to Shehryar Fazli i.e., from partition fiction to Karachi noir, and poets ranging from Taufiq Rafat to present-day poets like Raza Ali Hasan, this course allows the students to develop an overarching comprehension of the corpus of literary works that fall under the umbrella of Pakistani writings in English.

Course Objectives/Aims:
This course revolves around the following objectives:
- To analyze the enmeshment of history, culture and society in Pakistani writings in English so that the students can read the prescribed texts in terms of their situatedness in a Pakistani context
- To bring to the fore the osmosis between Western and Eastern literary paradigms as evinced in Pakistani Literature in English
- To subject the prescribed texts to an analysis from multiple theoretical lens so that further areas of debates and discourses may be generated
- To enable the students to move onwards from a postcolonial critique to a post-post-colonial analysis and theorization of the given literary texts
- To enable the student to raise questions regarding how this class of literature can function as an “irruption” point within global narratives pertaining to Muslim and Third World countries in Asia.

Course Title: South Asian Literature
Course Code: ELIT707

Course Description
This course introduces the literature of South Asia (contemporary India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Bangladesh) and the writers of the south Asian descent. Particularly, this course underscores the differential episteme of South Asian literature that defines it as a category different from the Commonwealth and Postcolonial literatures. It will focus on novels, short stories, and poetry that both present recognizable themes, and draw on the rich cultural, literary, and historical background of the region. The different short stories, novels, and films in the course represent some very important 20th century historical events, such as the moment of Independence for India and Pakistan, an event immediately followed by the ghastly violence of the 'Partition.' Others deal with more recent events: the Indo-Pakistan war of 1971, which led to the founding of Bangladesh; the civil war in Sri Lanka in the 1970s and 80s; or the recent border conflicts between India and Pakistan over Kashmir. Also, a significant number of the books in the course are written by 'diasporic' authors -- people who for various reasons live outside of the subcontinent. Some of these writers focus quite specifically on what life is like for displaced South Asians in London, the U.S., Canada, and elsewhere. Being a part of this contemporary world, the south Asian writers are no more isolated the contemporary trends in literary studies.

Course Objectives
This course aims:
1. To explore the effects of social, political and cultural factors on the literature produced in South Asia
2. To understand the differences as well as similarities in the literature produced in South Asia.
3. To develop an understanding of the issues of identity, class oppression, gender oppression, racism, and cosmopolitanism;

Course Outcomes
By the end of this course students will be able to:
1. Re assert South Asian Literature as an important strand of the Postcolonial literature and to demonstrate an understanding of important concepts in South Asian Literature in English;
2. Develop an understanding of rich literary tradition of south Asian literature and compare it with the rest of the literature as postcolonial. Afro – American literature etc. of the world.
3. Understand social, historical, cultural and global context of south Asian Literature in English and their points of convergence as well as their points of divergence

Course: Diasporic Literatures
Course Code: ELIT708

Course Description
This course introduces the study and analysis of literature that reflects the experiences of socio-cultural and geographical dislocation due to practices of slavery, indentured labor, forced or voluntary exile, and migration. The academic and social relevance of this course lies in the fact that the emerging diasporic literary forms challenge the stereotypical assumptions about victimization and marginalization and give new directions to experiences of dislocation in the contemporary globalized world. Over the last few decades, the liminal diasporic condition has become an enabling enunciatory state, as contemporary scholarship in this field shows. Diasporic studies foreground the revolutionary emerging trends in cultural, political, ethnic, racial and national affiliations. Globalization, privatization, cosmopolitanism as well as neocolonial and neo-imperial practices as they replace the traditional postcolonial practices, are all shaping the contemporary world, both in their positive and negative dimensions.

The study of diasporic literature has a great potential for research in terms of developing critical angles and methodologies as well as developing an understanding of the metropolitan multicultural global societies. In this scenario where postcoloniality has assumed new definitions and dimensions, diasporic literature incorporates the issues, debates and philosophies of the others of the world, thus enhancing the scope of research into a vast variety of important emerging trends in cultural and social practices and situations.

Course Objectives
- To develop an understanding of the theoretical concepts relating with diasporic literature through the study of the works of major scholars and critics.
- To study the selected literature using the insights provided by the works of scholars and critics.
- To see how the primary and secondary readings relate with the contemporary realities and experiences of diasporic authors, as well as with issues and debates of the world and assess Pakistan's position in this scenario as well as identify the role of a Pakistani scholar in the national as well as international academy.

Course Contents

Poetry
2. Saleem Peeradina. Selections from Contemporary Indian Poetry in English (1972)

Drama
1. Lorraine Hansberry. A Raisin in the Sun (1959)

Fiction

(Note: This provides ample margin to the concerned teacher to make selections from collections/anthologies and from each section as well depending upon time and topics of discussion.)

Course Outcomes
At the end of the course, students should be able to answer the following:
1. To what extent do you agree or disagree with the author, scholar or critic writing the text?
2. What are the reasons for your agreement or disagreement?
3. Are you able to support your point of view by supplementing it with the help of scholarly resources?
4. Does your point of view validate an inquiry into the assumptions that you support or disagree with and does this provide you with a researchable topic and area of discussion?

Suggested Readings
- Relevant articles by Stuart Hall and Diana Brydon can be given in the class.

(Note: The same books published by any other publisher can also be used.)
Elective Subjects MPhil English (Literature)

1. Course Title: Contemporary Postcolonial Studies

Course Description
This course introduces important concepts of postcolonial theory along with a study of leading postcolonial literary texts (selected poetry, drama and fiction). Postcolonialism as a field in literary scholarship has emerged and developed new theoretical dimensions in relation to the changing contemporary global environment. This introduces the postcolonial scholar to a series of interdisciplinary trends which are important to an understanding of the current conditions of the world and its conflicts.

Literature from different phases of production in the postcolonial world is reflective of the debates and issues of its time and, consequently, introduces the scholar to a wide range of debates as they have developed over time. A study of selected texts can help Pakistani scholars negotiate their own position in the neo-imperial globalized world and provide a direction for assessing the future possibilities regarding the global power structures, and also study the forms of resistance generated by natives.

The interdisciplinary theoretical innovations of postcolonial literary theory help in assessing and negotiating the political, economic, environmental, strategic, religious, and high capital and privatization issues of modern nation state. This opens avenues for useful and relevant research for Pakistani scholars and creates a space for assessing the emerging subject positions of the others of the world which is the source of giving new dimensions to postcolonial discourse theory and philosophy.

Course Objectives
1. To develop an understanding of the theoretical concepts of the postcolonial discourse theory through the study of the works of major postcolonial scholars and critics.
2. To study the selected literature using insights provided by the works of scholars and critics.
3. To see how primary and secondary readings relate with contemporary realities, issues and debates of the world and assess Pakistan’s position in this scenario as well as identify the role of a Pakistani postcolonial scholar in the national as well as international academy.

2. Course Title: War Literature
   Course Code: ELIT711

Course Description
This course introduces the genre of war writings, written during and after the wars fought in the twentieth century. The war fiction(s) as counter narratives not only recount horrors of war but also expose the dark side of human nature that seems to dominate the doings of fate and powers of societal institutions. War Literature considers texts engaging with diverse impacts of war, both on soldiers and civilians, and examines ways in which writers/poets transcend the boundaries of race, culture, religion, and politics to create narratives of universal human appeal. War, as this course reveals, can bring about liberation (social, psychological and political) and it can also engender new ways of control and power. It also makes possible new acts of creation where histories are rewritten and human emotions are captured in formidable situations.

This course, therefore, brings to light the multiplicity of perspectives contained in a conflict: the traumatic experiences of war veterans, civilians caught up in the war, the suffering of the displaced including the exiles, refugees and prisoners of war, the acts of gallantry, compassion and sacrifice in the face of utter indifference and hostility, and the fear of those left behind (especially women and children) during a war. In order for students to be familiar with these issues, this course offers a range of texts covering major conflicts in the twentieth century, and explores how some war writings tend to be propagandist and overtly political in nature. The Cold War Espionage was the main cause of popular contemporary genre of spy fiction. In addition, an important feature of this course is also the screening of popular war fiction movies to educate students about the impact of war.

Course Objectives
The student are expected to:
- Gain basic understanding of the historical context of the major wars of the twentieth century.
- Appreciate and analyze texts for their universal appeal rather than national or topical.
- Learn how great tragedies like war affect people and change their world view altogether.
- Deconstruct power narratives and reach for the underlying scheme of meaning.

Course Contents
Note:
At least four works of fiction and two poets may be selected for reading/analysis. The students are also expected to watch movies accompanying the texts, or any other recommended by the course instructor.

Course Title: Literature and Film Studies
Level: MPhil
Course Code: ELIT714

Course Description
The course enables students to experience international cultures critically by analyzing how movies and literary works create meaning(s). It provides conceptual frameworks and vocabulary for understanding and articulating how films and literature function or, in some cases, do not function. Every work has several layers of signification meant to be "read" or analyzed by the audience, and it is the goal of this course to establish how these layers of meaning contribute to our understanding of literary works and cinematic works in their entirety. Furthermore, this course explores the multiple and varied connections that exist between film, literature, and society.

Course Objectives
- To see how the semiotics of narrative and visual texts contribute to the hermeneutics of culture.
- To trace out the history of cinematic adaptations in terms of modernist/avant-gardist and postmodernist cinema and its politics.
• Employ comparative methods in order to better understand literary diversity and intertextuality.
• Acquire a critical knowledge of literary and film themes, motifs, structures, narratives, points of view, and values that are typical of various regions of the world.
• To investigate the politics and poetics of literary cinematic and video adaptations.
• Acquire a background for further studies in literature and film for a career and/or for pleasure.

Course Contents
The following themes/topics/works may be discussed:
• Film as an art form
• Politics of viewing and politics of culture
• Film adaptations and their relationship with literature
• Issues of authorship and adaptation
• Role of light and music in film
• Impartiality of Vision
• Basic Concepts: Language and Aesthetics of Film
• Understanding Film(1): Use of Light and Sound
• “Well, who you gonna believe, me or your own eyes?” Understanding Film(2)
• Adaptation as Interpretation: Filming Literary Texts
• King Lear: Across Cultures and Beyond Time
• Macbeth: From Scotland to Japan to India
• Othello: Transformation of a General into a Mafia Leader
• All Quiet on the Western Front: No More Fighting for King and Country

Suggested Critical Readings

- “The Language of Film.” n.a. n.p.
6. Course Title: Women’s Writings
Level: MPhil
Course Code: ELIT715

Course Description:
This course engages with critical discussions on women’s writings from across the world that constitute a strong anti-foundationalist voice together and, simultaneously, establish a counter-discourse that questions/challenges the political correctness of hegemonic patriarchal views and white western gender-specific politics of feminism. Journeying from their object positions of insufficiency to the status of agentive subjects, women have worked their way up as revolutionaries, distinguished academics, creative writers, and political activists over the centuries. Riven by multiple differences, women’s writings are variously subsumed under different waves of feminism spearheaded by Western White feminists and Third World feminists, and spill over into postfeminist times when women are rather shy of being branded as feminists. Going beyond universalist essentialist position on gender discrimination, popularized and espoused by white western feminists, women’s writings overtly seem to engage with linguistic, cultural, ethnic, racial, and class differences of women living in contemporary global world. That is why there is an obvious distancing of the Third World feminist epistemological praxes from the white western bourgeois feminist positions. Since late twentieth century, women’s writings have increasingly been tangential in terms of subscribing to theoretical stances professed through Marxist, poststructuralist, postmodernist and, now, ecocritical/eco-feminist, postfeminist, and posthumanist theories. With feminism gaining wide currency in the contemporary Muslim world, this course (also) addresses questions generated by growing western literature on women and Islam and contemporary Islamic intellectual encounters with western feminism.
Course Aims/Objectives:
This course aims to:

- trace historical trajectory of how women moved away from their biological/social givens to epistemological freedom and subjecthood
- provide a comprehensive analysis of the nature and motivation of women’s writings in global perspective, and help scholars understand why/how women write
- make scholars conversant with the differential nature of women’s writings across the world and help them see how their writings go beyond gender-specific view
- help scholars develop a critical view of the cultural encounter between Islam and the west, especially with reference to the position of women in Islam
- develop an awareness, among scholars, of how women’s writings negotiate the contestatory space between the margin and center
- familiarize the students with the play of feminism in contemporary posthumanist times

Core Texts
Note: Instructors are supposed to foreground a detailed introductory discussion from Greco-Roman times through all three waves of feminism to contemporary postfeminist times. It would be in order to touch on ecofeminist/green feminist, and posthumanist feminist issues so that students can develop a background to the reading of texts.

Poetry (across ages and cultures)

- Sappho. “I have not had one word from her”
- Piercy, Marge. “The Woman in the Ordinary”
- Angelou, Maya. “Woman Work”
- Rich, Adrienne. “Aunt Jennifer’s Tigers”
- Rich, Adrienne. “Diving into the Wreck”
- Alvarez, Julia. “Ironing Their Clothes”
- Kizer, Carolyn. “Fearful Women.”
- Duffy, Carol Ann. “Little Red Cap”
- Nelly Wong. “When I Was Growing Up”
- mary hope lee. “on not bein”
- Cherrie Moraga. “For the Color of My Mother”
• Maki Qureshi, “Kittens” and “For my Grandson”
• Hina Faisal Imam, “Motherhood and Frustration”

Note: Since these are poems by women from different ages and cultures, teachers are supposed to discuss a selection of at least ten poems.

• Louisa May Alcott, Little Women, 1868
• Bronte, Charlotte, Jane Eyre (1847)
• Chopin Kate, The Awakening (1898)
• Zora Neale Hurston, Their Eyes Were Watching God (1937)
• Alice Walker, The Color Purple
• Buchi Emecheta, The Joys of Motherhood (1979)
• Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie, Americanah (2013)
• Toni Morrison, Jazz (1992) or Home (2012)
• Bapsi Sidhwa, The Pakistani Bride (1990)
• Qaisra Shahraz, The Holy Woman (2001)

Note: Instructors may select any 8-10 novels from the given list as per availability of texts and the semester timings.

Short Fiction
• Charlotte Perkins Gilman, “The Yellow Wallpaper” 1973 [1892]
• Margaret Atwood, “Uncles” from Wilderness Tips (1991)
• Kamala Das, “The Kept Woman” (2010)
• Qaisra Shahraz, “A Pair of Jeans” from A Pair of Jeans (2013)
• Rukhsana Ahmad, “The Gate Keeper’s Wife” from The Gatekeeper’s Wife (2014)
• Bharati Mukherjee, “Wife” from The Middleman and Other Stories (1988)
• Zaib-Un-Nissa Hamidullah, “The Bull and the She Devil,” from The Young Wife (1958)

Note: Instructor is supposed to select at least 6-8 stories for discussions.
Drama

- Sarah Kane, Crave, from Complete Plays (2001)
- Rukhsana Ahmad, Song for a Sanctuary (1990)

Note: Instructors may select additional plays or replace the suggested plays by other women playwrights as per semester duration or the availability of texts.

Non-Fiction

- Fatima Mernissi, Beyond the Veil (1975)
- Anne Sofie Roald, Women in Islam: The Western Experience (2001)
- Leila Ahmed, A Quiet Revolution: The Veil’s Resurgence, from the Middle East to America (2011)

Note: This course has been developed in view of the requirements of our curriculum. It may be considered an instructional model and instructors may replace the suggested texts as per the availability of texts and secondary sources. For Non-Fiction, the instructors may select only chapters/parts of the suggested books.

Outcomes of course

- Since this course is likely to expose students to a variety of women’s writings since Greek times, they are likely to develop a special palate for women’s texts as counter narratives and sites of contestation.
- As women’s writings frequently intersect with contemporary critical theory, the students will be psyched up for critical analysis and theoretical forays, especially while writing research essays and dissertations.
- With intensive and extensive reading of the Western, Third World, and Muslim women’s writings, MPhil scholars would be able to appreciate Muslim intellectual women’s encounters with Euro-American feminism, and see how Muslim women writers from the Third World counter hegemonic western feminist discourse and why, sometimes, they become compradors trading off ideology for commercial success.
- Above all, this course will enable the students to develop a sound understanding of all three waves of feminism and the uncertain postfeminist / posthumanist times, and they will be able to do their own feminist criticism. That would provide a base for a useful production of feminist knowledge.
Further/Suggested Readings

Course Title: Postmodern Fiction
Level: MPhil
Course Code: ELIT716

Course Description
The course aims to explore postmodern literary theories and selective fiction by taking into account their formal, thematic and philosophical principles. The students will start by investigating how and why postmodern literature is different from modernism. The course also acquaints the students with the fundamental elements of the art of fiction, especially including the point of view, plot, character, style, narrative technique, theme, imagery, symbol, and setting. The ultimate objective is to enhance their ability to read, interpret, write about, and appreciate postmodern literary fictions.

Special emphasis will be given to postmodern themes such as issues of identity, displacement, narrative exhaustion, temporality, relativism, non-absolutism, consumerism, historicism, and literary forms such as metafiction, intertextuality, parody, irony etc. The course focuses not just on the key features and characteristics of “high” postmodernism of the 1960s and 1970s but also the critical and creative development of postmodernism of the twenty first century. Through careful reading of the selection of representative texts from the past seven decades across the globe, the students will be encouraged to identify opportunities for research within the field.

Course Objectives
Students are expected to:

1999[1977].
• Acquire an understanding of the relationship between texts and context and what characteristics of 20th and 21st century literature can be considered as postmodern
• Build on discussions by analysing passages, characters, plots, and themes developed in the selected texts
• Critically analyse the theories and arguments presented by postmodern critics and theorists such as Jean Francois Lyotard, Roland Barthes, Jean Baudrillard, John Barth etc.
• Develop analytical writing and presentation skills by engaging with the variety of postmodern stylistic features

Course Objectives
Benedict Anderson’s imagined Communities (1984) paved way for transnational discourse. The theorists, writers from Global South respond to myths and situations compounded by nationalism and offer an alternative critique to phenomena as diverse and interconnected as exile, border-crossing, diaspora, race, and immigration. This type of literary cultivation houses Global-South Global-North dialogue and pushes boundaries between literary productions imbued with constrictive nationalism and ones nurturing wider, cross-cultural, and transnational elements.

Jahan Ramazani in A Transnational Poetics (2015) identifies ‘the imaginative enactment of geographic displacement’ in transnational poetry and its capacity to transcend ‘mononational paradigms’. Therefore, this course aims to critique poetry trans (national) contexts, and their forms and themes inhabiting cross-cultural aesthetics. On one hand transnational poetry questions homogenized forms of globalization, and on the other hand feeds on complexities of cosmopolitan multiculturalism. Therefore this course also aims to unpack different traditions of poetry such as African American, Caribbean American, Asian American traditions. Moreover, the course also questions as how poets invent polysemic metaphors, and how they subvert existing paradigms of politics, culture and language, and how far they are successful in producing a dialogue among culturally diverse geographies.

9. Course Title: Digital Humanities
Level: MPhil

Course Description

Digital Humanities is a field of study in which scholarly applications of technology are used to perform analyses and generate insights that would be difficult or impossible to achieve without the help of technology. This course will introduce students to a number of digital tools that will aid them both in their studies and their lives beyond university, and will help them to use these tools in a critical way. The approach taken in this course is grounded in literature, linguistics and book history. Students will examine computer-mediated communication, and will consider the development of digital texts in the light of earlier technologies such as the printing press. They will focus on two kinds of approaches that are particularly prominent within digital literary studies, computational text analysis and digital mapping and will explore, and critique, examples of projects which use these tools.

The hands-on nature of the course is such that students will have the opportunity to learn how to use these applications for them, and will need to devote time each week to participating in the class’s virtual community through regular, informative contributions to the course blog. As the main assessment for the course, students will produce a digital project which conforms to the same high standards of scholarly rigour as an assessed essay, but which is attentive to the specific imperatives of the online environment in relation to genre, design and format.

Course Contents

1. What is Digital Humanities? Introduction to the field.
2. Computational tools for text analysis 1: Voyant, ManyEyes
3. Computational tools for text analysis 2: Ngrams, topic modelling, sentiment analysis
4. Computer-mediated communication
5. Versioning: Juxta
6. Historicizing textual technologies 1: Collaborating with Google Docs
7. Historicizing textual technologies 2: Zotero
8. Geospatial technologies 1: Simile Exhibit
9. Geospatial technologies 2: Google Earth and KML
10. Scholarship in the digital age: data, privacy, presence

Course: Research Methods in Linguistics (core)
Course Code: ELING 701

Course Description
This course looks at various approaches to the study of linguistics using both qualitative and quantitative methods of investigation. With a focus on the area of linguistics, students are introduced to the process of hypothesis formulation and testing, issues of interpretation, evaluation and replicability of data and of research results, questionnaire and interview design, data gathering and recording, statistical description and analysis.

Course Objectives
The aims of this course are to enable the students:
1. To be familiar with selected research techniques and approaches within the qualitative and quantitative research paradigms;
2. To develop understanding and skills of using appropriate tools for collecting data
3. To develop an understanding of ways of analyzing and reporting qualitative and quantitative data
4. To develop an understanding of basic concepts underlying the use of statistics;
5. To develop an understanding of ways of constructing, analyzing and reporting quantitative data;
6. To use of SPSS for analysis of data
7. To understand and use ethical issues at all stages of the research process.

Course Contents
- Research Questions in Linguistics
- Principles of Research Design
- Basic Features and Philosophical Underpinnings of Qualitative Studies
- Quantitative, Qualitative or Both? Combining Methods in Linguistic
- Data Collection and Data Analysis in the Social Sciences
- Descriptive and Inferential Statistical Techniques and the handling of Multivariate Data
- Standard Descriptive Terminology and Concepts in Applied Linguistics,

Course: Linguistic Theories (core)
Level: M Phil

Course Description
This course aims to provide students with an introduction to broad theoretical approaches to linguistics through the writings of important linguists including: Descartes, Saussure, Sapir, Jespersen, Bloomfield, Chomsky and others. Furthermore, the course will situate the field in terms of historical context and the philosophy of science. Readings for the course largely include articles from the philosophy of science and history of linguistics. Moreover, papers by well-known linguists will be deconstructed specifically in terms of assumptions, argumentation, and methodology.

Course Objectives
The course aims at:
● tracing theoretical underpinnings of the discipline of linguistics;
● introducing students with major theorists, philosophers and critics in different fields of linguistics;
● enabling them to determine fundamental assumptions of the key linguistic theories;
● empowering them to apply their understanding of the linguistic theories to language-related research.

Course Outcomes
By the end of the course, the students will understand major theories in linguistics and as a result will be able to:
● read and understand several authors’ own exposition of their theories;
● summarize and outline such theories with care;
● discern crucial assumptions of such approaches;
● compare and contrast theories, both in terms of philosophies and applications.
● apply the insights of theories to language-related fieldwork;

Course Contents
The course will cover the following areas:
● Formalism
  o Roman Jakobson
● Structuralism
  o Ferdinand de Saussure
  o Prague, Moscow and Copenhagen Schools of Linguistics
● Post-structuralism
  o Michel Foucault

Course: Applied Grammar and Syntax
Course Code: ELING703

Course Description
The structure of human language is both ambiguous and complicated; henceforth, knowledge of syntax helps us to lessen the ambiguity and simplify the complexity. The present course is a combination of applied grammar and syntax. The applied grammar part is included to build comprehensive foundations for understanding and learning the syntactic theories. Thus, the first part covers principal grammatical/syntax concepts like sentence constructions and constituency, syntactic linkages, the principles, methods, and procedures of constructing and parsing phrases, clauses and sentences of English. The former part will help learners to better understand the next part which is based on some of the major syntactic theories and processes.

Course Objectives
The course aims:
- To familiarize learners to some major applied grammatical concepts
- To explain and demonstrate through examples, how syntax works in structuring a language, particularly with reference to English language
- To develop students’ ability to parse and analyze English sentences as well as sentences from some other languages (ideally from some Pakistani languages)
- To acquaint learners with some foundational syntactic processes and theories
- To assist learners apply the knowledge of syntax and syntactic theories on languages other than English

Course Outcomes
By the end of the course, scholars should be able to:
- Comprehend grammatical concepts related to syntax.
- Identify the concepts, assumptions and methodology used by contemporary syntacticians.
- Apply syntax knowledge on primarily English language sentences and some other languages too.
- Compare and contrast structures of different languages.
- Write a term paper to apply their theoretical understanding of syntax on any language sample.

Course Contents
Major focus will be on the following topics:
- Phrases & Clauses: Focus on Constructions
• Grammatical Functions
• Head, Compliments & Modifiers: Focus on PS Rules, X Rules and Features
• Syntactic Linkage
• Constructions: Auxiliary, Passive, Conditional & Wh-Constructions
• Constituents structures & Tree diagrams
• Transformational- Generative Grammar & shift towards Modular Approaches
• Universal Grammar
• Stratificational Grammar & Tagmemics
• Relational Grammar
• Lexical Functional Grammar
• Systemic Functional Grammar: Construction of Mood & Modality, Theme & Rheme and Transitivity

Recommended Readings

Course: Discourse Studies
Course Code: ELING704

Course Description
This course builds on the foundations laid in Introduction to Discourse Analysis and explores in greater depth the basic assumptions, concepts and procedures of discourse studies, focusing particularly on literary discourse. The overall goal is to help students develop awareness and familiarity with the discourse analytic research process and practice it. The analysis of discourse - frequently defined as "language use above the level of the sentence" (Stubbs, 1983) - provides students with the opportunity to study the meaningful production and interpretation of texts and talk. The analysis of discourse encourages students to reconsider and re-evaluate the ‘rules’ of language with which they are already familiar. The examination of texts problematizes traditional word-class classifications and sheds new light on the functions and workings of grammatical categories (tense, mood and aspect, for example). In this respect, students may be encouraged to critically engage with discourses and explore how the meaning and interpretation of a text may be negotiated around the selection and use of particular syntactic and lexical forms or even aspects of pronunciation.

Through the study of discourse analysis students may gain an advanced and sophisticated understanding of the concept of ‘context’. Students engage with the study of how, in social interaction, human beings convey their meaning not as an individualistic enterprise but as a result of dynamic and ongoing negotiation with their interlocutors. In this way, students gain knowledge and understanding of the (symbolic) function of language in social life, and the role that language plays in the construction and shaping of social relationships. Students also have the opportunity to explore how power relations underpin the construction and meaning of discourse, and to learn about the ways in which control, dominance and inequality may be both asserted and resisted in discourse.

The main aims of the course are:

1. Understand formal and contextual features of discourse;
2. Develop skills in analysing the properties of different texts, in characterizing the interpersonal stances adopted by speakers and writers, and in identifying and classifying the various genres or texts types which operate in particular social settings.
3. Improve knowledge about both the internal structure of discourse and the varied uses of language in context.
4. Improve practical skills in conducting discourse study projects. In this course students will also cover a number of themes in discourse studies, including discourse and cultural diversity, discourse and social institutions, discourse and power, discourse and technology, etc.

Course Outcomes

1. The course will enable students to consider the variations between different kinds of texts. It will give them opportunity to consider a variety of texts, such as speeches, advertisements and email-messages, so as to see how discourse is used and to what effects.
2. It would inform them about both the internal structure of discourse and the varied uses of language in context

SECOND SEMESTER

Course: Language Power and Identity
Level: MPhil
Course Code: ELING705

Course Description
This course is about Language and Power. It draws a connection between language use and unequal relations of power. The course is based on two perspectives. The first is theoretical: to help correct a widespread underestimation of the significance of language in the production, maintenance and change of social relations of power. The second perspective is more practical which focuses on how language contributes to domination of some people by others. In particular the course will deal with exercise of power in modern society which is achieved through ideology and ideological workings of language.

Course Objectives
1. The course will provide students in-depth knowledge about language, power and identity.
2. The interrelationship between these important sociolinguistic concepts will be analyzed with relevance to contemporary times and scenario.
3. The aim of this module is to enable students to understand the current approach to language called CLS - Critical language study.

Course Outcomes
At the completion of the course the scholars should be able to
1. Appreciate connection between language, power and identity;
2. Increase their consciousness of how exercise of power in modern society is achieved through language;
3. Understand Discourse as a social practice and the relationship between class and power in capitalist society.

Core Texts

Course Contents
1. Introduction of the Module, Definition of Key Terms Related to Language, Power and Identity.
2. Approaches to CLS (Critical Language Study)
   - Linguistics
   - Sociolinguistics
3. Pragmatics and its Relationship to CLS
4. Conversational Analysis
5. Discourse Analysis
6. Concept and History of Rhetoric
7. Political Rhetoric – Propaganda
8. Persuasive Language
9. Mid Term Test/Exam
10. Recent Theory/Theorists
    - Michel Foucault
    - Jurgen Habermas
    - Relationship of Recent Theories to CLS
11. Discourse as Social Practice
    - Language and Discourse
    - Discourse and Orders Of Discourse
12. Discourse as Social Practice
    - Class and Power in Capitalist Society
    - Dialectic Of Structures and Practices
13. Discourse and Power

Course: Translation Studies
Level: MPhil
Course Code: ELING706

Course Description
Translation Studies is an academic discipline that explores the practice, process and product of translation from both linguistic and cultural viewpoints. Interest in translation is practically as old as human civilization and there is a vast body of literature on the subject dating back at least to the antiquity. With the advent of globalization, however, this discipline has come into a dynamic interaction with such subjects as history, literature, linguistics, semantics, media studies, corpus linguistics and so on. Its nature is, therefore, interdisciplinary and it seeks to synthesize insights emerging from different disciplines with reference to the theory and practice of translation.

The course is geared towards an imparting intimate knowledge of the subject by exploring the role of translation in intercultural and intracultural relations and to find out how it is used to make communication possible and efficient. The course also focuses on the relationship between translation and other aspects of language use such as language patterning, textual organization and the semiotics of verbal and non-verbal communication.

Course Objectives
1. To elucidate the importance of translation.
2. To understand the history of translation along with major theoretical debates.
3. To understand the interplay of source text and target text.
4. To develop a considerably sound and proficient command of translation.
5. To conceptualize the intricacies and technicalities of translation with reference to the questions of globalization, identity, dominance and hegemony.
6. To cultivate a deep understanding of cultural and linguistic dimensions of translation.

Course Outcomes
Upon the successful completion of this program the scholars are expected to:
1. Demonstrate a detailed knowledge and understanding of various areas of translation theory
2. Explore different theoretical debates and approaches in order to appreciate the interdisciplinary nature of the subject.
3. Analyse and describe, coherently and independently, translated text
4. Appreciate the complexities of translation in order to deepen and broaden their linguistic and communicative competence.
5. Undertake an independent in-depth investigation in an area of their choice

Course Contents
1. What is translation? Definition and scope
   a. Linguistic approaches to definition
   b. Philosophical approaches to definition
   c. Cultural approaches to definition
   d. Communicative approaches to definition
2. Translation methods and skills
3. A brief look at the history of translation with special focus on the 20th and 21st centuries
4. Translation in the era of information technology: machine translation and corpus-based translation
5. Postcolonial theories of translation
6. Translation, ideology, and politics
7. Self-translation
8. The question of equivalence
9. Kinds of translation: word-for-word, sense-for-sense
10. Translating idioms, metaphors and fixed expressions.
11. Translation, genre and register (brief discussion on translating different kinds of text e.g. legal, medical, scientific, business, technical, political, literary, etc.)
12. Major techniques and strategies of translation e.g. foreignization, domestication, etc.
13. Translation and pedagogy
14. Research issues in translation

Course: Latest Trends in Linguistics
Course Code: ELING707

Course Description
Linguistics is rapidly evolving discipline in the present era. The in-depth study and explorations in the field has given rise to many sub-disciplines, both core and applied in nature. However, the process has not just stopped as newer trends in Linguistics are always in pipeline. This course familiarizes learners to four contemporary areas in Linguistics (currently, as new additions can be made in future) to keep their knowledge updated. Forensic linguistics is about how language relates to law, both in terms of linguistic evidence and in terms of legal discourse. The module on Ecolinguistics is based on a wide range of approaches to the study of language in its ecological context. The segment of Computational Linguistics is based on the elementary theoretical frameworks and applications of computational linguistics. The fourth part introduces learners to the newly developed field of Cultural Linguistics, a multidisciplinary field of research that examines the complex relationship between language and cultural conceptualizations.

Note for the teachers: Since the nature of this course is to cover current as well as emerging trends in Linguistics; thus, teacher is at liberty to add new fields/ topics/ contents or change the above listed fields/ topics/ contents.
Course Objectives
The course aims:
• To acquaint learners with four contemporary fields in linguistics
• To familiarize learners to linguistic aspects of the criminal justice system including those which center on policing and the courtroom (Forensic Linguistics)
• To introduce learners to the burgeoning literature on discoursal aspects of the discussion of the environment, sustainability and ecologies (Ecolinguistics)
To encourage learners to critically appraise the ways in which the environment, sustainability and ecologies are presented, represented and constructed through a range of contemporary forms of language and communication (Ecolinguistics)
• To introduce the learners to the core theories and applications of computational linguistics
• To assist students critically evaluate link between language and cultural concepts (Cultural Linguistics)

Course Outcomes
By the end of this course, scholars should be able to:
• comment on the linguistic aspects of various interactions in the legal system
• discuss which factors determine authorship, what authorship means, and what issues are relevant to plagiarism (Forensic Linguistics)
• understand basics of the field including some principal theories and applications (Computational Linguistics)
• demonstrate awareness of the key groups of protagonists in environmental and related debates
• identify themes and patterns in language and discourse on environmental topics (Ecolinguistics)
• appreciate the diversity of world views and cultural cognitions reflected in different languages and language varieties
• reflect critically on their own experiences of communication with people from diverse backgrounds (Cultural Linguistics)

Course Contents
This course will cover following topics:

Forensic Linguistics
• Introduction to Forensic Linguistics: language and the legal process and as evidence
• Characteristics of legal language
• Textual variation; plagiarism
• Forensic Texts & Transcriptions
• Forensic linguistics in practice
• Linguistic power (in-balance) in the courts and in police investigations

Eco-Linguistics
• Eco-linguistics: Introduction & key terms in the field
• Advertisements and advertisers - Consumerism – dominant discourses and our responses
• Law and the environment
• ‘The people’ – Public discourses of the environment – Activists and activities
• Literary representations of environmental change

Computational Linguistics
• Computational Linguistics: Introduction
• Computational Linguistic: Major theories
• Some knowledge from Applied Computational Linguistics
• Applications that use computational linguistics: machine translation, search, information extraction

Cultural Linguistics
• Introduction to Cultural Linguistics
• Cultural schemas, metaphors and categories
• Cultural Linguistics and intercultural communication
• Cultural Linguistics and Learning English as an International Languages

Course: Narratology
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING708

Course Description
Storytelling is a universal discourse practice and an important cognitive tool, yet conventional forms of traditional narrative vary widely across languages, cultures, and genres. This course explores the typology of narrative forms, focusing on the linguistic devices that are relied upon in the construction of an effective narrative. The course discusses linguistic aspects of the complex relationship between the narrator, the speaker, and the author. It also address the role of grammar in shaping narrative forms, as well as the relationship between narrative forms and the ways narratives are performed and transmitted.

Course Objectives
The main objectives of the course are:
● To familiarize scholars with fact-producing storytelling.
● To equip scholars with methodological approach using computational means to look at large scale corpora of narratives.
● To analyze new traditions of storytelling developing in the digital media.

Course Outcomes
Students who successfully complete the course are expected to:
● Gain a wide knowledge of narratological models, and of specific approaches and work within the discipline.
● Develop adaptable skills that will allow them to conduct professional narratological analyses.
● Develop independent research skills, critical thinking, the ability to assimilate different theoretical approaches to a phenomenon, skills of adapting a methodology to a new context, and effective communication skills.
Course Contents

- History of Narratology
- Reference to entities: How characters are introduced and referred to, Referential density and the use of anaphoric pronouns
- Reference to events: Event segmentation, Plot and composition
- Narrative deixis and discourse reporting: Tense, person, Strategies for reporting characters’ speech
- Author, narrator, and source of knowledge: Authorial presence and sources of knowledge, Reference to psychological states: characters' emotions, motivation, intention
- Discourse cohesion and the encoding of interclausal relations: Grammatical means of linking clauses together, Subordination and nominalization
- Encoding relationships between larger-than-sentence units: Discourse markers, Prosody, Orality and literacy reflected in narrative
- Acquisition of narrative skills
- Narratology and Digital Media
- Central Concepts in Digital Narratology

ELECTIVES

1. Course Title: Corpus Linguistics
   Level: M Phil
   Course Code: ELING709

Course Description
Corpora, viz. electronic collections of spoken and written data, are playing an ever increasing role in a large number of applied linguistics areas. This course examines how applied linguistics has benefited from the use of corpora, in areas such as: language and its acquisition, language and assessment, language and instruction, language and society, language and technology, language and translation, language for specific purposes.

Course Objectives
This course aims to:
- equip students with a critical understanding of what corpora are, and how they can be used to address a range of different linguistic research questions
- familiarise students with a number of existing corpora, and enable them to comment on the appropriateness of using these corpora to tackle different kinds of research question
- encourage students to think about situations in which they may want to design their own corpora, and provide them with the necessary skills and knowledge in order to do so

Course Outcomes
On successful completion of this module, students will be able to:
- use corpus tools and methodologies to query the corpus and extract and interpret the patterns accordingly
- create and evaluate corpus-based materials based on research
- evaluate the main theoretical strands which underpin corpus-based research

Course Contents
- Introducing Corpus Linguistics
- Research Questions and Corpus Design
- Methods in Corpus Linguistics: interpreting concordance and beyond concordance
- Corpus annotation
- Linguistic annotation in corpus linguistics
- Linguistic Annotation of Texts ("tagging")
- Corpus Software
- DIY Corpora: Building and using your own corpora
2. Course Title: Language and Technology
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING710

Course Description
This course is multidisciplinary in nature and provides critical understanding for creative cross disciplinary research. The course provides opportunities to develop innovative scholarship based on increasingly complex, multidimensional, transdisciplinary and vibrant ideas in Language & emerging Technologies, Information Communication Technology, Social Media, Mobile Technologies, Digital Media Technologies and Digital Games, Human Computer Communication, hypertext, cybertext, digital games and cinema, digital narratives and Digisocio-cultural dimensions of language usage. This course focuses on a strong connection of ‘technology’ and ‘language’ and encourages critical understanding of impressions of technological progression in the field of linguistics and changing perspectives in language usage and language learning technologies due to a strong and exciting interface of language and technology.

Course Objectives
- To develop critical understanding of multidimensional perspectives of interface of technology and language
- To develop understanding of the vital issues and concepts in the use of language in different forms and formats of digital technology
● To critically analyze ICT tools, Digital Media, Mobile Technologies, Social Media on the Internet, virtual reality, digital games and Learning Technologies for language usage, language learning and teaching

Course Outcomes

By the end of the course, the students will be able to:

● have clear understanding of multidimensional perspectives of the interface of technology and language
● Critically evaluate various digital technologies for language usage in different forms, formats and language learning
● Develop innovative research projects based on the use of technology in language pedagogy, Digi-socio-cultural language usage, Digital Media, ICT tools, gender based issues of language and technology, virtual reality and Human Computer Communication

Course Contents

1. Introduction to Language & Technology
2. Human-Machine Communication
3. Digital Text
4. Hypertext
5. Cybertext
6. Interactive Texts
7. Digital Media
8. Communication in Virtual Reality
9. Digital Gaming
10. Language and Social Media

3. Course Title: Psycho-Neurolinguistics
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING711

Course Description
Psycholinguistics is the empirical and theoretical study of the mental faculty that underpins our consummate linguistic agility. It is as much about the study of the human mind itself as it is about the study of that mind's ability to communicate and comprehend. From a linguistic standpoint, neurolinguistics aims at clarifying how language structures can be instantiated in the brain. Neurolinguistics is located at the interface between linguistics, neurology and psychology. Interestingly, it is deeply entwined with psycholinguistics for gaining intriguing and stimulating insights into the processes governing linguistic abilities. This course is specifically designed to provide insights into the interdisciplinary perspectives on the issues in psycholinguistics and neurolinguistics which entail the comprehension of sentences, speech production, memorization, bilingualism, the neuroanatomy of language and neurolinguistic impairments etc. Moreover, the contents of the course specifically invite scholars to address and further research on those dimensions that are not yet fully explained and explored by current theories. To maximize the learning potential, the scholars are required to attend the classes regularly, participate in classroom discussion sessions and unannounced/announced quizzes, compose assignments that reflect their original and creative ideas and present research papers as a significant part of the major project by the end of the semester.
Course Objectives
• To examine the psychological and neurological processes that underlie linguistic abilities
• To critically review the major theoretical frameworks which investigate the psychological and neurological aspects of language
• To analyze language impairments as these impairments provide evidence for the organization of language in the brain

Course Outcomes
By the end of the course, the scholars are expected to:
● Gain comprehensive understanding of the critical issues with regard to psycho-neurolinguistics
● Assess and present research papers within the field of psycholinguistics and neurolinguistics so as to give an up-to-date overview of recent advances in the said fields and provide substantial basis for providing new insights into the selected dimensions

Course Contents
➢ Comprehension of Sentences
  ● The Construction Process
  ● Surface Constituents
  ● Syntactic approaches
  ● Semantic approaches
➢ Language Production
  ● Discourse Plans
  ● Sentence Plans
  ● Constituent Plans
  ● Execution of Speech Plans
➢ Psycholinguistic Perspective on Memorization
  ● Propositions in Memory and Recall Search
  ● Biases in Reconstruction
  ● Modality-Specific Memory
➢ The Psycholinguistics of Bilingualism
  ● Sentence Processing in Bilinguals
  ● Bilingual Visual Word Recognition
  ● Bilingual Text Production Activity: Processes and Strategies
  ● Bilingual Memory
➢ Neurolinguistics
  ● The Development of Theories about Brain and Language
  ● Models and Frameworks in Neurolinguistics Today
➢ The neuroanatomy of language
  ● The Structure of the Cerebral Cortex
  ● The Broca-Wernicke-Lichtheim Model
  ● The Neuropsychological Perspective
➢ Neurolinguistics and aphasiology

216
● Reading and Writing from a Neurolinguistic Perspective
● Acquired Disturbances of Reading and Writing and Developmental Dyslexias
● Recovery Patterns in Bilingual Aphasia

4. Course Title: Advanced Stylistics
   Level: M Phil
   Course Code: ELING712

Course Description
The aim of the course is to study the features of distinctive varieties of language and to discover and describe the reasons for particular choices made by individual and social groups in their use of language. This course however, is an extension and should be seen in perspective with the similar course recommended earlier in the BS scheme.

Course Contents
● Stylistics as a branch of linguistics
● Literary and non literary stylistics
● Tools for stylistic analysis
● Deviation and parallelism
● Linguistic/ Semantic Oddities
● Style and Register
● Conversational style
● Scripted speech
● Stylistic Analysis of a Variety of Written and Spoken Texts
● Practical applications of Stylistics
Recommended Readings

5. Course Title: Anthropological Linguistics
   Level: M Phil
   Course Code: ELING713

Course Description
The course aims to familiarize students with the ways people negotiate, contest, and reproduce cultural forms and social relations through language, and the ways in which language provides insights into the nature and evolution of culture, cognition, and society. The course integrates traditional anthropological concerns linking language, culture, and cognition.

Course Objectives
Students are expected to:
1. Gain considerable knowledge of the relationship among language, culture and cognition.
2. Develop understanding philosophical ideas that engage the discipline.
3. Understand the communicative practice centred on ideology.
4. Develop familiarity with anthropological approaches to orality and literacy, performance and performativity in connection with mediation of language in social life.
5. Develop a broad knowledge of the diversity of the world’s languages

Course Contents
- Introduction to Linguistic Anthropology
- Language as a cultural resource
- Linguistic diversity
- Linguistic relativity
- Cultural and linguistic constraints on mind
- Cultural and linguistic practices
- Metaphor and embodied experience
The cultural construction of gender
Kinship terms
Colour terms and classifiers
Gestures across culture

Recommended Readings

6. Course Title: Systemic Functional Linguistics
   Level: M Phil
   Course Code: ELING714

Course Description
The course is designed to enable the learners to understand the Systemic Functional Grammar and this mainstream approach towards linguistic studies. Furthermore, it is believed that the learners would develop a context based analytical approach to understand literary and non-literary texts.

Course Objectives
The course objectives are to:
- Develop an understanding of the basic concepts and terminologies related to SFL.
- Explore the theoretical underpinnings of SFL.
- Enable students to apply SFL tools for analytical purposes.
Course Contents
- Basic concepts in Firthian linguistics
- Critique and comparison with Chomsky’s IGG
- Language, context and function
- Text in context of situation
- The meta-functions of language
- Identifying clauses and clause constituents
- The cline of dynamism
- Application of SFL tools on variety of texts

Recommended Readings

7. Course Title: Critical Discourse Analysis
   Level: M Phil
   Course Code: ELING715

Course Objectives
The course aims at enabling the students to analyze discourse from socio-cultural and sociopolitical perspectives. The course will enable students to understand the criticality involved in construction and interpretation of social discourses. The objectives of the course are to:
- Introduce students to various approaches and methods of power based analytical paradigms
- Enable students to understand theories of CDA and their application to locally contextualize data
Course Contents

- Discourse as a social and political enterprise
- Theories of Discourse Analysis
- Different Approaches to CDA
  1. Michel Foucault
  2. Norman Fairclough
  3. Van Dijk
  4. Ruth Wodak
- Common Features of CDA
- Difference between CDA and PDA
- Application of CDA on diverse texts

Recommended Readings

8. Course Title: Bilingualism
   Level: M Phil
   Course Code: ELING716

Course Description
This course is designed to introduce students to the linguistic, psycholinguistic, sociolinguistic and societal aspects of bilingualism. Role of bilingualism and its various aspects in the development of linguistic and social enterprise would be the focus of the course.

Course Objectives
The objectives of the course are:
To understand and discuss different definitions of bilingualism.
To explore and evaluate different methods of ‘measuring’ bilingualism.
To understand the basics of how bilingualism learn and use their languages in different situations.
To understand the effects of social and cultural factors on bilingualism.
To understand cognitive differences and similarities between bilinguals and monolinguals.
To understand and discuss basic issues of bilingual education, language policy and planning.

Course Contents
1. Introduction to bilingualism
2. Dichotomies and Characteristics of bilingualism in cultural contexts
3. Language Skills and bilingualism
5. Language Change and the New Global Linguistic Order
6. Issues of Language Spread and Maintenance
7. Perception of Identity and bilingualism
8. Research in bilingualism: Possibilities and Practices

Recommended Readings
5. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press.
9. Course Title: Genre Analysis
   Level: M Phil
   Course Code: ELING717

Course Description
This course aims at introducing the theories and procedures of genre analysis and its applications in second language teaching. The students will be introduced to different genres for analysis and will practically engage in analyzing some important genres.

Course Objectives
- To achieve an understanding of the themes, issues and debates related to important theories and relevant methods of genre analysis.
- To be able to recognize and correctly identify the characteristic features of specific academic genres and analyze them critically.
- To be able to discuss important issues and develop crucial vocabulary concerning both the theoretical and methodological aspects of genre analysis.

Course Contents
- What Is Genre Analysis?
- Why Genre?
- Approaches to Genre
- Basic Principles for Conducting Genre Analysis
- Identifying and Analyzing Text Features
- Researching Genres as Practices
- Methods for Researching Genre Practices
- Genre and Corpus Analysis.
- Perspectives on Genre
- Genre-Based Writing Teaching

10. Course Title: Issues in Syntax
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING718

Course Objectives
The course aims to familiarize the students with some of the major theories and issues in syntax. The course will help them understand the relation between syntactic theories.

Course Contents
- Universal Grammar
  1. Principles and parameters
  2. Categories and features
  3. X-Bar Theory
- Syntactic Structure
- Merger; empty categories
- Movement
  1. Head movement
  2. Verb Movement
  3. Negation
  4. Case and agreement
  5. Operator Movement
- Economy Principle
- Split projections

11. Course Title: Applied Linguistics
    Level: M Phil
    Course Code: ELING719

Course Description
This course is a gateway to the field of applied of applied linguistics. It will introduce students to different methods adopted throughout the tradition of language teaching to teach language at the same time probing into the approaches, linguistic or psychological, that backed them. The knowledge of this will prepare the students to cope with the other subjects. This course further aims at introducing fairly advanced ideas related to syllabus designing and implementation. It offers a review of dominant and competing syllabuses in the 20th century focusing especially on the milieu of their rise and the cause of their decay both. The theory will go in this course hand in hand with practice: the students will review different syllabus for applying the concepts they learn.

Course Contents
- Theories of language learning
- The nature of approaches and methods in language learning
  - GTM
  - The Direct Method
  - The Audio-lingual Method
  - The Natural Approach
  - CLT
  - The Eclectic Approach
- Error Analysis
  - Nature and purpose
  - Causes of errors
    - Interlingual errors
    - Intralingual errors
    - Overgeneralization
    - Literal translations
- Contrast between Behavioristic and Mentalistic attitude to errors
- Stages of error analysis
● Definition and scope of syllabus
● Considerations common to all syllabuses
● Relationship between theory of language, language learning and language syllabuses
● Dichotomies of Syllabuses
● Product vs. Process-oriented syllabuses
● Analytical Synthetic syllabuses

12. Course Title: Multilingualism
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING720

Course Description

This course is designed to introduce students to the linguistic, psycholinguistic, sociolinguistic and societal aspects of multilingualism. The students will examine how multilingualism is defined and measured, the development of multilingualism, linguistic behaviors of multilingual speakers, the psycholinguistic and neurolinguistic bases of multilingualism, the relationship between language and identity, language maintenance and language loss, and issues of education and language planning for multilinguals and society as a whole.

Course Objectives

- To understand and discuss different definitions of multilingualism
- To explore and evaluate different methods of ‘measuring’ multilingualism
- To understand the basics of how multilingualism learn and use their languages in different situations
- To understand the effects of family background, societal and cultural norms concerning language, education and age on multilingualism
- To understand cognitive differences and similarities between multilinguals and monolinguals
To understand how society can contribute to, or hinder multilingualism
To understand the basic issues of multilingual education
To understand and discuss basic issues of language planning and language policy that can affect multilinguals and multilingualism

Course Contents

Introduction to multilingualism:
- Definitions and Descriptions of multilingualism
- Unilingualism
- Multilingualism

Dichotomies and Characteristics
- Multilingualism vs. Multilingualism
- Natural Multilingualism vs. Transition Multilingualism

Why Multilingualism? Exploring Multilingualism in Cultural Contexts
- Impact of family, society, economy and education on achieving and maintaining Multilingualism
- The Price of Multilingualism: Issues, Problems, Concerns
- Methods of ‘measuring’ Multilingualism

Language Skills and Multilingualism
- Speaking skill
- Listening Skill
- Reading Skill
- Writing skill
- Degrees of Multilingualism

Language Practices in Pakistan
- Source
- Status
- Value
- Identifying the Sources
- Pakistani Language Policies
- Pakistani Education Policies

Language Change and the New Global Linguistic Order
- Nationality, Supranationality and role of languages

Issues of Language Spread and Maintenance
- Language Shift
- Language Change
- Language Desertion
- Sharing the studies conducted in Pakistani/ International Contexts

Code Switching, Code Mixing, Hybridization
- Code Switching
- Definitions
- Types
- Factors initiating/ constraining Code switching
- Pragmatic aspects
Sharing case studies/ sample research
Borrowing and Code Mixing: Insertion, Alternation, Variation in Mixing Patterns

Perception of Identity and Multilingualism
- The Politics of Language: Issues of Identity and Globalization
- Multilingualism in a diglossic situation
- Diglossia, Multilingualism and presentation of self
- Sharing Case Studies
- The Politics of Language in America

13. Course Title: Teaching and Learning English in Large Classes
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING721

Course Objectives
The aims of the course are:
1) To review current research on class size.
2) To identify the issues in teaching and learning in large classes.
3) To explore techniques and strategies for teaching English in large classes.

Course Contents
- Research on class size
- What is large class? Why do large classes occur?
- Does class size affect learning and achievement?
- Teacher-learner behavior and classroom processes in small and large classes
- Learner strategies in large classes
- Teacher’s view of and response to large classes
- Methodological issues in research on large classes
- Rethinking teaching and learning of English in large classes
- Teaching the language skills
- Group work
- Materials and resources
- Assessment procedures
- Approaches to the management of large classes
- The class size question: Politics and/or pedagogy?

14. Course Title: Cross-Cultural Communication
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING722

Course Objectives
The aim of this course is to foster an awareness and appreciation of cultural differences that exist among people belonging to diverse cultures. The awareness gained through this course can, in turn, increase intercultural communicative competence of learners.

Course Contents
- Introduction to Intercultural Communication
- Theoretical perspectives that help to explain interactions between members of different cultures.
- Current literature and prevailing concepts in the field of cross-cultural communication
- Principles to improve intercultural communication.
- Strategies to avoid communication breakdown among people of diverse cultures
- Cultural diversity
- Influence of culture on communication
- Anxiety in Intercultural Encounters
- Barriers to Intercultural Communication
- Sources of Intercultural Miscommunication
- Strategies to improve Intercultural Communication
- Cross-cultural adaptation
- Multicultural Collaboration

Recommended Readings

15. Course Title: Theoretical Phonology
Level: M Phil

Course Description
This course is based on basic knowledge and theoretical background of phonology. It aims to develop in students a deep understanding of various phonological phenomena and their representation in human mind. The course also aims to train students in comparative analyses of phonological material at various levels. Modern trends of research in phonology also make part of this course.

Course Objectives
Students are expected to:
1. Understand phonological representation of human sounds.
2. Analyze phonological material at various levels.
3. Understand the representation of speech at different levels.

Course Contents
- Human speech mechanism (Place and manner of articulation)
- Consonants and vowels
- Secondary articulation (nasalization, Labialization, velarization, palatalization, etc.)
- Sonority sequence generalization and syllable structure
- Distinctive phonological features and feature geometry models
- Suprasegmental phonology
- Stress and Tone
- Lexical phonology
- Complexity, frequency and universal typology of sounds
Introduction to Optimality theory
Markedness and its implications for L2 acquisition
Phonological processes
Mental representation of phonological material

Recommended Readings

16. Course Title: Phonetics
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING724

Course Objectives
The course aims to
1. Train students to analyze human speech sounds scientifically
2. Use computer in the study of pronunciation and speech analysis
3. Use latest softwares in analysis of sounds of their own languages
4. Understand modern trends in phonetics

233
Course Outcomes

At the end of the study, students will be able to
1. Understand the nature of human speech sound.
2. Analyse human speech in computer.
3. Compare English and Pakistani languages to highlight differences between languages.
4. Uses of software in phonetic data analysis.

Course Contents

- Relationship between Phonetics and phonology
- Airstream mechanism in speech production
- Branches of phonetics
- International Phonetic Alphabet
- Auditory phonetics
- Acoustic phonetics
- Acoustic characteristics of vowels
- Nature of sound waves
- Acoustic characteristics of consonants
- Parameters for acoustic analysis of vowels
- Study of Formants in phonology
- Supra-segmental phonology in acoustics
- Laryngeal contrast in plosives: Voicing onset time (VOT)
- Reading spectrograms using softwares (Praat etc.)

17. Course Title: Language Program Management
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING725

Course Description

This course is intended for foreign language teaching professionals who wish to take up management roles or develop their management skills in language teaching programs. It provides participants with the knowledge and skills they require for successful language program management in a variety of language teaching contexts. This introduces some of the issues that are faced by those who are responsible for organising or managing language teaching operations or related areas of practice. It examines the effects of organisational structure on organisational culture; leadership styles; human resource management; professional development and staff appraisal; project management; financial management; marketing; organisational communication; and managing for innovation.

Course Contents

1. Principles & Practices of Language Teaching
2. Language Policies and documentation
3. Language Project Design
4. General Management
5. Language program development and management
6. Language Program Operations
7. Language Teacher Education
8. Language Teacher Supervision
9. Language Assessment and Testing Management
10. Finance Functions and budgeting in Educational Organization
11. Marketing and Recruiting for Language Programs

Suggested Readings

18. Course Title: Morphology and its Theoretical Foundation
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING726

Course Description
The course introduces theoretical debate on word formation processes in Pakistani languages. It is designed in a way to give the students first the basic knowledge of structures in words i.e. the combinations of words and parts of words in Urdu, Punjabi, Sindhi and Pashto etc. Then along with introducing approaches to morphological analysis, it also gives an idea of interface between on morphology and other core areas of linguistics like phonology, syntax and semantics.

Course Objectives
The aims of this course are to enable the student to:
1. Be familiar with word structures and the analysis of word structures with or without being given in phonetic transcription.
2. Develop an understanding of applying morphological rules on words in Pakistani languages.
3. Develop an understanding of word analysis in relation with semantic change.
4. Develop an understanding of basic theoretical concepts of word analysis.
5. Develop an understanding of applying the theories of morphology e.g. Optimality Theory for any morphological analysis.
6. Develop confidence to write a research oriented term paper on the morphology of Pakistani Languages

Course Outcomes
Students are expected to be able to do descriptive analysis of word structures, do the theoretical discussions and write a research paper on morphological issues in Pakistani languages.

Course Outline
(Examples from Pakistani languages obligatory)
- Introduction to Morphology: words and their parts: free morphemes and bound morphemes
- Phonetic Transcription of Words phonetic symbols, writing words with IPAs
- Functions of Bound Morphemes/Affixes: prefixes, suffixes, infixes, interfixes, circumfixes
- Inflectional Morphology: pluralization, case form, degree marking, verb forms
- Derivational Morphology: formation of nouns, adjectives, verbs, adverbs
- Derivation by compounding and by modification of base, reduplication
- Morphology of Pak Languages: word forms in Urdu, Punjabi and other Pakistani languages
- Minor Processes of Derivation: reduplication, blending, clipping, backformation, acronyms.
- Morpheme Lexeme Based Morphology, Lexical Morphology Hypothesis, Morpheme-Lexeme
- Base Morphology, Word Based Morphology, Distributed Morphology
- Optimality Theory (OT): A Constraint Based Theory

19. Course Title: Neuro-linguistics
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING727

Course Description
Neuro-linguistics is the study of the neural mechanisms underlying the acquisition, use, comprehension, and production of language in the brain. This is an interdisciplinary field informed by theoretical linguistics and psycholinguistics as well as cognitive neuroscience, neuropsychology, computer science and evolutionary linguistics. The course explores the anatomical basis for language in the human brain and presents a range of topics for the students to study language in relation to the functioning of brain.

Course Outline
1. Neuroanatomy and Neurophysiology of the Language
2. Mapping Brain & Language
3. Language production, perception & Processing
4. Language Acquisition & Bilingualism
5. Language Disorders
6. Sign Languages
7. Language & Cognition

Recommended Readings

20. Course Title: Cognitive Linguistics
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING728
Course Description
Cognitive linguistics goes beyond the visible structure of language and investigates the considerably more complex backstage operations of cognition that create grammar, conceptualization, discourse, and thought itself. The theoretical insights of cognitive linguistics are based on extensive empirical observation in multiple contexts, and on experimental work in psychology and neuroscience. Results of cognitive linguistics, especially from metaphor theory and conceptual integration theory, have been applied to wide ranges of nonlinguistic phenomena. The aim of the course is to familiarize the students with theoretical frameworks of Cognitive Linguistics required to carry out research in the field.

Course Contents
1. Origin of Cognitive Linguistics
2. Cognitive Linguistics vs. Chomsky’s Generative Grammar
3. Construal
4. Iconicity
5. Landmarks and trajectory

21. Course Title: Sociolinguistics
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING729

Course Description
Sociolinguistics, which explores the interrelationship between language and society, is both interesting and complicated. It helps in developing a deeper understanding of society as well as language. The purpose of this course is to build on the knowledge and understanding of MPhil scholars that they come with. The outline includes almost all key issues which are deemed important in the field. It also includes some important nonlinguistic variables which are associated with language and its use. It examines language in relation to society, with particular reference to the linguistic situation in Pakistan and investigates the correlation between linguistic variables and non-linguistic variables such as gender, age and social class.

Course Objectives
The objectives of the course are to enable the students to:
1. Understand the core concepts used in the field.
2. Reflect upon the crucial issues in Sociolinguistics with particular reference to the relationship between language and non-linguistic variables such as gender, social class, age, etc.
3. Develop and understand the current sociolinguistic situation in Pakistan with particular reference to bilingualism, multilingualism, language policy, language maintenance and language shift.
4. Explore new vistas of research in the field with special reference to Pakistani context.

Course Outcomes
At the end of the course, students would be able to:
1. Demonstrate an understanding of the core concepts of sociolinguistics.
2. Identify and explain different sociolinguistic aspects of language.
3. Conduct research in various areas of sociolinguistics.

Course Contents
1. Sociolinguistics and Sociology of Linguistics.
2. Dialectology.
3. Language Ideology.
4. Pidgin and Creole, Creolization and Decreolization
5. Language Attitudes: Convergence, Divergence and Acts of Identity
6. Language, Identity and Culture
7. Language and Power
8. Problematization of Gender, Social Class, Age and Ethnicity
9. Quantitative Sociolinguistic: Exploration of language in its social context through the methods of quantitative analysis of linguistic variation, including the Labovian and implicational models.
11. Language Diversity and Speech Communities, Bilingualism and Multilingualism, Dimensions, Manifestations and Effects of Bilingualism
12. Language Maintenance, Language Decline, Language Shift and Language Death
13. Language Revival, Language Cultivation
14. Language Policy and Planning (LPP)
15. LLP: how different nations view it.
16. Language Policies of Pakistan since 1947

22. Course: World Englishes
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING730

Course Description
The English language now has more than one billion speakers worldwide. Many millions speak English as a native language; many more speak English as a second language, but most speak it as a foreign language. Yet, the English spoken by the largest group is considered distinct from the traditional “native” varieties of English. This course explores the historical, political, and socio-cultural issues associated with the globalization of Englishes, focusing on some of the structural differences of these varieties, but also on the ideological underpinnings of the debates about nativization/indigenization, standardization, identity, and ownership.

Course Objectives
The course aims at developing amongst students the following skills:
● To demonstrate critical understanding of the concepts and theories regarding World Englishes and also of the main dimensions of language variation at the international level;
● To develop an understanding of the causes behind the global spread of English and the implications regarding its use for native languages;
● To show a sound understanding of the key sociolinguistic and cultural issues arising from the spread of English.

Course Outcomes
By the end of this course, the students should be able to:
● Analyse and critically discuss some of the main characteristics of the international varieties of English, including non-standard varieties;
● Demonstrate that they have developed an ability to critically assess the materials and themes discussed in the course;
● Demonstrate the ability to carry out an investigative study of any of the topics regarding global English and report their findings.

Course Content
The course will cover the following areas:
● Standard English: RP
● British and American Englishes
● Variation and change: accents, dialects and global Englishes
● Language contact
● Standards and norms in global Englishes
● Current debates and issues in World Englishes
● The global use of English in education and its implications

23. Course Title: Linguistic Human Rights
Level: M Phil
Course Code: ELING731

Course Objectives
This course is an attempt to create an awareness among students about contemporary issues related with language rights. In the light of basic human rights approved by UNO’s charter every individual has the right to enjoy freedom of speech and getting education in his own mother tongue. This is the hegemonic condition of oppression that some language is given a high status to mar the intellectual output of a nation. This course tries to provide information about basic linguistic rights and their importance in the progress of the academia of a nation.

Course Outcomes
At the end of the course the students are expected to understand, Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1948) especially Linguistic Rights/ Language Rights.

Course Contents
- Brief History of the Linguistic Rights
- The endangered Languages- Dying Cultures
- The role of Linguistic Rights in Education, in Curriculum Development, in Character Building
- The Need to develop curriculum according to the Linguistic Rights in Teacher education.
- The Linguistic Rights and Literature.
- The place of Regional Languages in Popular culture.( Film, media, print)
- The role of Linguistic Rights in building international Culture.
- Linguistic Rights and Ideology.
- Linguistic Rights and freedom of Individual thought.
- Linguistic Rights and Contemporary issues.
- Linguistic Rights and issues in language culture and identity.
- Linguistic Rights and our Limitations
- The historical background of Linguistic rights Universal Declaration of Linguistic Rights(1996)
- European Charter for regional or minorities languages.(1992)
- Language rights and human rights , culminating in Linguistic human rights(LHR)
- Linguistic rights in Private and Public domain
- Overt and Covert Rights
- Negative and Positive Rights
- Territorially given language Rights
- Practical Application of Linguistic Rights
- Language rights in Pakistan
- The Place of Regional languages in Pakistan

Suggested Readings
- UNO’s Declaration of Human Rights. (1948)
- Universal Declaration of Linguistic Rights(1996)
- European Charter for regional or minorities languages.(1992)
- Language rights and human rights , culminating in Linguistic human rights(LHR)
- Language Policies of Pakistan

Specific Recommendations
1. Enhancement of intensive and extensive Teachers Training, in-country and abroad, in the fields mentioned below and other areas where the universities lack in required expertise:
   - Curriculum and Syllabus Design for English
   - Methods and Methodologies for teaching English (particularly in large classes)
   - Training of the university and college teachers into newly introduced areas of study, like new trends in Literary Criticism and Theory, Research and Bibliographic Methods for Literature, Gender and Literacy Studies and Computer Assisted Language Learning.
   - Autonomous yet responsible ways of assessment and grading
   In this context HEC may identify and utilize the services of the current trained expertise (e.g. human resources already developed under the UGC/DIFD 10-year programme 1983-1992). It is proposed that the HEC should conduct a two-day seminar of the trained teachers of HEC (UGC) and introduce the BA/BS and MS programme to a wide range of university and college teachers through the identified Master Trainers.

2. Ensuring the Availability of essential infrastructure in the form of resources. This includes faculty, library availability and expansion, provision of technological facilities.

3. Maintaining equal standards across the English departments of the universities; HEC may also facilitate coordination amongst the literature, language, and linguistic components of these departments. The NCRC (English) 2005-06 and 2008 is one example of the type of collaboration possible in course design and implementation.
4. Improvement of the current examination and evaluation system in English by aligning the exam system with the proposed curriculum and innovative methodology of teaching and learning English.

5. Curriculum Orientation programs for university faculty should be funded by HEC (One of the members of NCRC should be present). These could be one to two week workshops at respective universities organized at convenient timings for the faculty.

6. In order to facilitate the implementation of this curriculum, individual universities may request HEC to ensure the provision of basic resources particularly books and faculty to teach these courses. It is recommended that HEC should launch some projects for the development/provision of learning material for the recommended courses.

7. Assessment guidelines should be prepared to assist the teachers to align testing to the curriculum objectives.

8. There should be a process for ongoing evaluation of the course including action research, student evaluation.

9. Also, in the HEC framework for the BA/BS four-year program, students study the major courses in the third year. However, the universities may design and offer optional/remedial courses for the students of the existing two-year BA programme according to their available resources. In addition, the universities should recommend the same course for affiliated colleges.
English I (Functional English)

Objectives: Enhance language skills and develop critical thinking.

Course Contents
Basics of Grammar
Parts of speech and use of articles
Sentence structure, active and passive voice
Practice in unified sentence
Analysis of phrase, clause and sentence structure
Transitive and intransitive verbs
Punctuation and spelling

Comprehension
Answers to questions on a given text

Discussion
General topics and everyday conversation (topics for discussion to be at the discretion of the teacher keeping in view the level of students)

Listening
To be improved by showing documentaries/films carefully selected by subject teachers

Translation skills

Urdu to English
Paragraph writing
Topics to be chosen at the discretion of the teacher

Presentation skills
Introduction

Note: Extensive reading is required for vocabulary building

Recommended Books
1. Functional English
a) Grammar
b) Writing
Reading/Comprehension

d) Speaking

English II (Communication Skills)
Objectives: Enable the students to meet their real life communication needs.
Course Contents:
Paragraph writing
Practice in writing a good, unified and coherent paragraph Essay writing
Introduction

CV and job application
Translation skills
Urdu to English

Study skills
Skimming and scanning, intensive and extensive, and speed reading, summary and précis writing and comprehension

Academic skills
Letter/memo writing, minutes of meetings, use of library and internet

Presentation skills
Personality development (emphasis on content, style and pronunciation)

Note: documentaries to be shown for discussion and review

Pakistan Studies (Compulsory)

Introduction/Objectives

- Develop vision of historical perspective, government, politics, contemporary Pakistan, ideological background of Pakistan.
- Study the process of governance, national development, issues arising in the modern age and posing challenges to Pakistan.

Course Outline

1. Historical Perspective

   b. Factors leading to Muslim separatism
   c. People and Land
      i. Indus Civilization
      ii. Muslim advent
      iii. Location and geo-physical features.

2. Government and Politics in Pakistan

   Political and constitutional phases:
   a. 1947-58
   b. 1958-71
   c. 1971-77
   d. 1977-88
   e. 1988-99
   f. 1999 onward

3. Contemporary Pakistan

   a. Economic institutions and issues
   b. Society and social structure
   c. Ethnicity
   d. Foreign policy of Pakistan and challenges
   e. Futuristic outlook of Pakistan

(Compulsory)

Objectives
This course is aimed at:
1. To provide Basic information about Islamic Studies
2. To enhance understanding of the students regarding Islamic Civilization
3. To improve Students skill to perform prayers and other worships
4. To enhance the skill of the students for understanding of issues related to faith and religious life.

Detail of Courses

Introduction to Quranic Studies
1. Basic Concepts of Quran
2. History of Quran
3. Uloom-ul-Quran

Study of Selected Text of Holy Quran
1. Verses of Surah Al-Baqarah Related to Faith (Verse No-284-286)
2. Verses of Surah Al-Hujurat Related to Adab Al-Nabi (Verse No-1-18)
3. Verses of Surah Al-Muminoon Related to Characteristics of faithful (Verse No-1-11)
4. Verses of Surah Al-Furqan Related to Social Ethics (Verse No.63-77)
5. Verses of Surah Al-Inam Related to Ihkam (Verse No-152-154)

Study of Selected Text of Holy Quran
1. Verses of Surah Al-Ahzab Related to Adab al-Nabi (Verse No.6, 21, 40, 56, 57, 58.)
2. Verses of Surah Al-Hashr (18,19,20) Related to thinking, Day of Judgment
3. Verses of Surah Al-Saff Related to Tafakur, Tadabbur (Verse No-1,14)

Seerat of Holy Prophet (PBUH) I
1. Life of Holy Prophet (PBUH) in Makkah
2. Important Lessons Derived from the life of Holy Prophet (PBUH) in Makkah

Seerat of Holy Prophet (PBUH) II
1. Life of Holy Prophet (PBUH) in Madina
2. Important Events of Life Holy Prophet (PBUH) in Madina
3. Important Lessons Derived from the life of Holy Prophet (PBUH) in Madina
Introduction to Sunnah
1. Basic Concepts of Hadith
2. History of Hadith
3. Kinds of Hadith
4. Uloom-ul-Hadith
5. Sunnah & Hadith
6. Legal Position of Sunnah

Selected Study from Text of Hadith
Introduction to Islamic Law & Jurisprudence
1. Basic Concepts of Islamic Law & Jurisprudence
2. History & Importance of Islamic Law & Jurisprudence
3. Sources of Islamic Law & Jurisprudence
4. Nature of Differences in Islamic Law
5. Islam and Sectarianism

Islamic Culture & Civilization
1. Basic Concepts of Islamic Culture & Civilization
2. Historical Development of Islamic Culture & Civilization
3. Characteristics of Islamic Culture & Civilization
4. Islamic Culture & Civilization and Contemporary Issues

Islam & Science
1. Basic Concepts of Islam & Science
2. Contributions of Muslims in the Development of Science
3. Quran & Science

Islamic Economic System
1. Basic Concepts of Islamic Economic System
2. Means of Distribution of wealth in Islamic Economics
3. Islamic Concept of Riba
4. Islamic Ways of Trade & Commerce

Political System of Islam
1. Basic Concepts of Islamic Political System
2. Islamic Concept of Sovereignty
3. Basic Institutions of Governance in Islam

Islamic History
1. Period of Khilafat-E-Rashida
2. Period of Umayyads
3. Period of Abbasids

Social System of Islam

COMPULSORY MATHEMATICS COURSES FOR BS (4 YEAR)
(FOR STUDENTS NOT MAJORING IN MATHEMATICS)

1. MATHEMATICS I (ALGEBRA)

Prerequisite(s): Mathematics at secondary level
Credit Hours: 3 + 0

Specific Objectives of the Course: To prepare the students, not majoring in mathematics, with the essential tools of algebra to apply the concepts and the techniques in their respective disciplines.

Course Outline:
Preliminaries: Real-number system, complex numbers, introduction to sets, set operations, functions, types of functions. Matrices: Introduction to matrices, types, matrix inverse, determinants, system of linear equations, Cramer’s rule.
Quadratic Equations: Solution of quadratic equations, qualitative analysis of roots of a quadratic equations, equations reducible to quadratic equations, cube roots of unity, relation between roots and coefficients of quadratic equations.
Sequences and Series: Arithmetic progression, geometric progression, harmonic progression.
Binomial Theorem: Introduction to mathematical induction, binomial theorem with rational and irrational indices.
Trigonometry: Fundamentals of trigonometry, trigonometric identities.

2. MATHEMATICS II (CALCULUS)

Prerequisite(s): Mathematics I (Algebra)
Credit Hours: 3 + 0
Specific Objectives of the Course: To prepare the students, not majoring in mathematics, with the essential tools of calculus to apply the concepts and the techniques in their respective disciplines.

Course Outline

Recommended Books
4. Thomas GB, Finney AR, Calculus (11th edition), 2005, Addison-Wesley, Reading, Ma, USA

3. MATHEMATICS III (GEOMETRY)
Prerequisite(s): Mathematics II (Calculus)
Credit Hours: 3 + 0

Specific Objectives of the Course: To prepare the students, not majoring in mathematics, with the essential tools of geometry to apply the concepts and the techniques in their respective disciplines.

Course Outline
Geometry in Two Dimensions: Cartesian-coördinate mesh, slope of a line, equation of a line, parallel and perpendicular lines, various forms of equation of a line, intersection of two lines, angle between two lines, distance between two points, distance between a point and a line. Circle: Equation of a circle, circles determined by various conditions, intersection of lines and circles, locus of a point in various conditions. Conic Sections: Parabola, ellipse, hyperbola, the general-second-degree equation

4. COURSE FOR NON-MATHEMATICS MAJORS IN SOCIAL SCIENCES

Title of subject: MATHEMATICS

Discipline: BS (Social Sciences).

Pre-requisites: SSC (Matric) level Mathematics

Credit Hours: 03 + 00

Minimum Contact Hours: 40

Assessment: written examination;

Effective: 2008 and onward

Aims: To give the basic knowledge of Mathematics and prepare the students not majoring in mathematics.

Objectives: After completion of this course the student should be able to:

- Understand the use of the essential tools of basic mathematics;
- Apply the concepts and the techniques in their respective disciplines;
- Model the effects non-isothermal problems through different domains;

Contents:

1. Algebra

2. Statistics

   Introduction: Meaning and definition of statistics, relationship of statistics with social science, characteristics of statistics, limitations of statistics and main division of statistics.  Frequency distribution: Organisation of data, array, ungrouped and grouped data, types of frequency series, individual, discrete and continuous series, tally sheet method, graphic presentation of the frequency distribution, bar frequency diagram histogram, frequency polygon, cumulative frequency curve. Measures of central tendency: Mean median and modes, quartiles, deciles and percentiles. Measures of dispersion: Range, inter quartile deviation mean deviation, standard deviation, variance, moments, skewness and kurtosis.

Recommended Books
4. Wilcox, R. R., ‘Statistics for The Social Sciences’,

5. MATHEMATICS FOR CHEMISTRY

Credit Hours: 3
Prerequisites: Mathematics at Secondary level
Specific Objectives of Course:
To prepare the students not majoring in mathematics with the essential tools of Calculus to apply the concepts and the techniques in their respective disciplines.

Course Outline

Recommended Books

6. MATHEMATICS FOR PHYSICS

Contents

1. Preliminary calculus.
   - Differentiation
     Differentiation from first principles; products; the chain rule; quotients; implicit differentiation; logarithmic differentiation; Leibnitz’ theorem; special points of a function; theorems of differentiation.
   - Integration
     Integration from first principles; the inverse of differentiation; integration by inspection; sinusoidal function; logarithmic integration; integration using partial fractions; substitution method; integration by parts; reduction formulae; infinite and improper integrals; plane polar coordinates; integral inequalities; applications of integration.

2. Complex numbers and hyperbolic functions
   - The need for complex numbers
   - Manipulation of complex numbers
     Additions and subtraction; modulus and argument; multiplication; complex conjugate; division
   - Polar representation of complex numbers
     Multiplication and division in polar form
   - de Moivre’s theorem
     Trigonometric identities; finding the nth roots of unity; solving polynomial equations
   - Complex logarithms and complex powers
   - Applications to differentiation and integration
   - Hyperbolic functions
     Definitions; hyperbolic-trigonometric analogies; identities of hyperbolic functions; solving hyperbolic equations; inverses of hyperbolic functions; calculus of hyperbolic functions

3. Series and limits
   - Series
     - Summation of series
       Arithmetic series; geometric series; arithmetico-geometric series; the difference method; series involving natural numbers; transformation of series
   - Convergence of infinite series
     Absolute and conditional convergence; convergence of a series containing only real positive terms; alternating series test
4. Partial differentiation
   - Definition of the partial derivative
   - The total differential and total derivative
   - Exact and inexact differentials
   - Useful theorems of partial differentiation
   - The chain rule
   - Change of variables
   - Taylor's theorem for many-variable functions
   - Stationary values of many-variable functions
   - Stationary values under constraints

5. Multiple integrals
   - Double integrals
   - Triple integrals
   - Applications of multiple integrals
     - Areas and volumes; masses, centers of mass and centroids;
Pappus' theorems; moments of inertia; mean values of functions
   - Change of variables in multiple integrals

6. Vector algebra
   - Scalars and vectors
   - Addition and subtraction of vectors
   - Multiplication by a scalar
   - Basis vectors and components
   - Magnitude of a vectors
   - Multiplication of vectors
     - Scalar product; vector product; scalar triple product; vector triple product
   - Equations of lines and planes
     - Equation of a line; equation of a plane
   - Using vectors to find distances
     - Point to line; point to plane; line to line; line to plane
   - Reciprocal vectors

7. Matrices and vector spaces
   - Vectors spaces
     - Basic vectors; the inner product; some useful inequalities
   - Matrices
   - The complex and Hermitian conjugates of a matrix
- The determinant of a matrix
  Properties of determinants
- The inverse of a matrix
- The rank of a matrix
- Simultaneous linear equations
  N simultaneous linear equations in N unknowns
- Special square matrices
  Diagonal; symmetric and antisymmetric; orthogonal; Hermitian; unitary normal
- Eigenvectors and eigenvalues
  Of a normal matrix; of Hermitian and anti-Hermitian matrices; of a unitary matrix; of a general square matrix
- Determination of eigenvalues and eigenvectors
  Degenerate eigenvalues

8. Vector calculus
- Differentiation of vectors
  Composite vector expressions; differential of a vector
  - Integration of vectors
  - Space curves
  - Vector functions of several arguments
  - Surfaces
  - Scalar and vector fields
  - Vector operators
  - Gradient of a scalar field; divergence of a vector field; curl of a vector field
  - Vector operator formulae
  - Vector operators acting on sums and products; combinations of grad, div and curl
    - Cylindrical and spherical polar coordinates
    - Cylindrical polar coordinates; spherical polar coordinates.
ANNEXURE - E

Statistics-I

Definition and importance of Statistics in Agriculture, Data Different types of data and variables

Classification and Tabulation of data, Frequency distribution, stem-and-Leaf diagram, Graphical representation of data Histogram, frequency polygon, frequency curve.

Measure of Central tendency, Definition and calculation of Arithmetic mean, Geometric mean, Harmonic mean, Median quantiles and Mode in grouped and ungrouped data.

Measure of Dispersion, Definition and Calculation of Range, quartile deviation, Mean deviation, Standard deviation and variance, coefficient of variation.

Practical

a. Frequency Distribution
b. Stem-and-Leaf diagram
c. Various types of Graphs
d. Mean, Geometric mean Harmonic Mean,
e. Median, Quartiles Deviation, mean Deviation.
f. Standard Deviation, Variance, Coefficient of variation,
g. Skewness  and kenosis

Introduction to Information and Communication Technologies

Course Structure: Lectures: 2 Labs: 1 Credit Hours: 3
Prerequisite: None Semester: 1

Course Description
This is an introductory course on Information and Communication Technologies. Topics include ICT terminologies, hardware and software components, the internet and World Wide Web, and ICT based applications.
After completing this course, a student will be able to:
- Understand different terms associated with ICT
- Identify various components of a computer system
- Identify the various categories of software and their usage
- Define the basic terms associated with communications and networking
- Understand different terms associated with the Internet and World Wide Web.
- Use various web tools including Web Browsers, Email clients and search utilities.
- Use text processing, spreadsheets and presentation tools
- Understand the enabling/pervasive features of ICT

Course Contents
